Despite pleas of officials to keep the number of entries down, the meet's popularity attracted the biggest field ever. Stories, pictures and complete results are on Pages 10 and 21.

More Hospital Staffs Voting on Walkouts

KELOWNA (CP) — A hospital employees' union official said Sunday hospital employees in Penticton, Kamloops and Trail were expected to vote today on whether to walk off the job in support of workers here.

Ray McCready of the British Columbia Hospital Employees Union, said he is confident, however, that talks with Kelowna General Hospital will lead to a better deal for the workers, who started a study session Thursday in the hospital's cafeteria.

Although the hospital was granted an injunction Saturday ordering its 288 non-medical workers back to work, none had returned Sunday, when McCready, union representative for the Okanagan-Kootenay region, and union business agent Jack Gerow met five times with hospital administrator Colin Elliott.

McCready said in an interview the union stopped work at Kelowna because Elliott is also president of the B.C. Hospitals Association.

"The problems we face are common to every hospital in the province," said McCready. "This matter must be — and is being — resolved at Kelowna."

Now H-Test Hinted For India

Times News Services

India plans to follow last month's atomic test with a "more spectacular feat in the future" — probably a hydrogen bomb test, reports from New Delhi indicated Sunday.

No further British nuclear tests were scheduled in the near future, but the one which took place in Nevada was "necessary to maintain the effectiveness of our nuclear deterrent."

Arrangements for the test were made by the former Conservative government, which left office four months ago, he said.

It was Britain's first N-test in nine years.

Left-wing Laborites believe British tests compromise the government, which has made known its displeasure at India's entry into the nuclear club and France's latest test in the atmosphere over the Pacific.

Henry's Hopeful Of Accord

Times News Services

WASHINGTON — U.S. Secretary of State Henry Kissinger said today the United States and Russia may reach an "agreement in principle" on an underground test ban during President Nixon's summit visit to Moscow this week.

Kissinger, however, branded as "totally false in every detail" assertions that he had already negotiated a secret agreement giving the Soviet Union more nuclear missiles than publicly announced in the first round of Strategic Arms Limitation Talks.

Kissinger was questioned closely about past nuclear arms negotiation, but he opened his news conference with a lengthy discussion of what he hopes will be accomplished this week when he and President Nixon arrive in Moscow for another summit meeting with Soviet leaders.

The sessions will involve three parts, Kissinger said. The first will be a general review of the world situation.

The second part and the most difficult, he said, will be "the serious problem . . . of the control of the nuclear arms race."

Security Tight

B.C. Indians today threw a security net over Maple Bank Park where up to 2,000 of them are due to begin a demonstration they will carry to the legislative buildings Tuesday.

Radio-controlled patrols were stationed at Admirals and Maple Bank Road and at the entrance to the park to warn off outsiders during today's preparation meeting and celebration on the Songhees Reserve.

Half-Price Holidays

Weary MLAs, legislative staff and press gallery members have been invited to relax in Maui after the longest sesssion in B.C. history.

Former Liberal MLA Gordon Gibson has invited the legislative members to half-price accommodation at his Maui Lu resort.

Gordon Gibson Jr. (L-North Vancouver Capilano) extended the invitation for any time before Christmas this year, and said his father was "not motivated by any desire for gain other than your company."

PENSIONERS' PLOTS RAVAGED

He went to stroll around his garden early Saturday morning and found vegetables and flowers uprooted and lying battered all over the yard. Three of his neighbors on Lampson were also victimized and one resident of nearby Joffre Street reported a similar raid had taken place overnight.

"It burns me up," Smart told the Times today. "Five pensioners were hit in a row and the raiders just went through and pulled all the vegetables out and left them lying around. It's pretty sick.

"Spinach, lettuce and carrots were just about ready."

One incensed neighbor said the vandalism was "as low as you can get. These people are in retirement, enjoy their gardens and enjoy the fresh food."

She said a similar incident had taken place this time last year. "We figured then it was just malicious mischief, but when it happened again this year we decided it should be reported.

"One man," the woman explained, "had never grown such carrots as this year and he was pretty disgusted."

New Subpoena Against Nixon

Times News Services

WASHINGTON — The House Judiciary Committee issued another subpoena against President Nixon today despite his declaration that he would not comply.

The subpoena asked for 12 tapes and copies of Nixon's daily news summaries for a period in the winter and spring of 1972 when Richard G. Kleindienst was testifying before senate judiciary committee hearings of his nomination as attorney-general.

The committee has issued four previous subpoenas since it began its inquiry into the possible impeachment of Nixon.

The United States Supreme Court, also postponed today a decision on Nixon's request for the evidence which led a federal grand jury to name him as an unindicated co-conspirator in the Watergate political espionage scandal.

Meanwhile, Sen. Sam Ervin said Sunday the Senate Watergate committee is expected to have its report ready by Thursday but said it probably would not be made public until after Congress' July 4 recess.

The reason for delay in releasing the report was the trial of four defendants in the Ellsberg break-in beginning Wednesday, he said.

Prepaid Contract Probe Set

Consumer Services Minister Phyllis Young announced Saturday that a task force would be established soon to investigate prepaid service contracts sold to British Columbians.

Ms. Young said the task force, which will be set up when the Trade Practices Act is proclaimed as law, would look into the practices involved in the selling of future services by business such as weight-reducing salons, dance studios, health spas, computer dating services, door-to-door magazine sales and food freezer plans.

The task force will turn over its findings to Ms. Young for possible action.

Members of the task force will be Vincent Forbes, executive vice-president of the Vancouver Better Business Bureau, Shelley Rivkin, who works with the Consumer Action League in Vancouver, and a third member, whose name was not announced.

Public Service Vote Favors New Contract

By ROGER STONEBANKS
Times Staff

A new master contract covering general conditions for the bulk of British Columbia's public service employees has won overwhelming acceptance, the B.C. Government Employees Union announced today.

A union spokesman said the contract was accepted by 92 per cent of the 24,000 persons who voted. Turnout, he added, was about 90 per cent.

Salaries are not a part of the master contract. They will be negotiated in a second contract covering 13 occupational groups within the BCGEU.

The union said notice to bargain on the second contract was to be served on the Public Service Commission today and talks could begin as early as next week.

Under the general contract, employees working 40 or more hours a week will come down to 37½ hours and clerks working 36 hours and 40 minutes will go on a 35-hour week.

Shift differentials of 25 cents an hour for afternoons and 30 cents for graveyard are established and overtime will be at the rate of time and one-half for the first four hours and double time after that. Double time will be paid for work on statutory holidays and triple time will be paid for Christmas and New Year's Day.

A dental plan will be established with the employer paying 75 per cent of the cost.

The new contract will run to Sept. 30, 1975.

IWA Chief Confident

Confidence was expressed today by Jack Munro, regional president of the International Woodworkers of America that coast members will accept a new one-year contract with the timber industry.

The nine coast locals were organizing voting procedures today among their 32,000 members. Victoria IWA members met at 11 a.m. in the Esquimalt Municipal Sports Centre. The vote was to come at the end of the meeting.

Voting arrangements were being made this morning in the Duncan and Port Alberni IWA locals.

Meanwhile, there was no return to work among close to half the coast woodworkers, including nearly all the 14,000 on Vancouver Island. They stopped work when the last contract expired 10 days ago without a settlement.

Munro said he was sorry to hear the 5,650-member New Westminster IWA local's executive is recommending that members reject the contract offer.

"I don't think their executive board understands the entire package," he said.

"What the membership should realize is that this is a one-year agreement and we

'Rough Justice' Ahead—Stanfield

Times News Services

The business community will have to put up with "fairly rough justice for a year and a half or so" under a prices and incomes control program, Progressive Conservative leader Robert Stanfield said in a weekend TV interview.

During the subsequent 18-to-24-month period of flexible controls, business would have to justify price increases.

"This may strike some businessmen as fairly rough justice . . ." he commented.

Claims that price-income freezes had not worked in the United States were "just not so," he added.

Controls presented problems, he said, but "they have not proven to be failures."

Stanfield also said, on the weekend he has no reason to believe a Gallup poll figure which indicates that the percentage of undecided voters has dropped to 14 per cent from 33 in mid-May.

In Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., NDP leader David Lewis was asked at a news conference about the poll.

"I wish we had" shown higher, not so much for the results on July 8, as for the spirit of the thing," Lewis said.

He talked of the millions of dollars that have poured into the Atlantic provinces through federal regional expansion grants and of millions more that are available.

Kemano Hydro Study On

Work began today on a $338,000 environmental impact study of the effects of the controversial proposed Kemano Two hydro-electric project.

The project, recommended in a 1972 B.C. energy board report, would drastically reduce the flows in the Nechako, Morice and Nanika river systems.

It would increase power generated at Kemano, 100 miles south of Kitimat, by diverting 90 per cent of the Morice, Dean and Nanika rivers into the Nechako reservoir shutting off most of the original Nechako river flows.

Resources Minister Bob Williams said the project would almost certainly not be developed but the studies were needed to provide the government with "some ammunition to use against Alcan."

In 1950 B.C. signed a water rights agreement with Alcan (Aluminium Co. of Canada) which would allow the project to go ahead.

Fisheries biologist Jim Walker said the study is supported by B.C. Hydro and three agencies are involved in the work. Environment Canada, the fish and wild life branch, and the International Pacific Salmon Commission.

He said the Dean River is not included in the impact study.

He described the study as a basic inventory of fish and wild life resources and said it would include a three-man socio-economic team and a study of recreation potential.

The studies are expected to take one to two years to complete.

War Canoes Relive Old Glories

They formed the highlight of the annual two-day water festival sponsored by the Tsartlip band of West Saanich.

Some of the 10 eleven-man canoes, as long as 54 feet, reached speeds as high as 10 knots as their crews vied for top honors.

As well as eight crews from Vancouver Island, there were two from the mainland — one from Chehalis near Mission City and the other from St. Thereas in North Vancouver.

A Cowichan canoe manned by Wayne Page and Terry George of Cowichan won the men's doubles. Mr. and Mrs. Arvid Charlie, also of Cowichan, won the mixed doubles. Leonard Morris of the host band was men's singles champion.

Fesitval chairman Samuel Sam, valued some of the canoes as high as $3,000, adding the value of the craft in preserving his people's culture, was beyond any price tag.

Competitors racing on the weekend will be following a regular racing circuit in the six months that lie ahead.

Phillips has just completed a four-year contract with the federal Indian affairs department, visiting schools to demonstrate and teach Indian dance and legends.

A champion dancer, Phillips appears in the Walt Disney production "The Bears and I," shortly to be released.

Indian costumes, Phillips explained, have become more Pan-Indian since 1971.

He wore a costume which took his wife 750 hours to make. It featured matched eagle feathers, dyed porcupine quills, rooster hackles and fancy beadwork in his own "fire" design.

Aziz Ahmed, Pakistan's minister of defence and foreign affairs, said today India has enough plutonium for 17 nuclear bombs and that this has been confirmed by Canada.

"According to our calculations, which were confirmed by the Canadian government when I talked to them, India has enough plutonium for 17 bombs—all surreptitiously collected from the reactor set up with Western help," Ahmed said.

"The bomb has been exploded right outside our door. We know who are the target countries."

"Nevertheless, in deference to the wishes of some of my colleagues we have very considerably toned down our draft resolution which merely notes the fact that India has exploded a device. This is a fact. In fact India is very proud of it."

will be back at the bargaining table in eight months."

The offer negotiated with Forest Industrial Relations, bargaining arm for 120 companies, includes a general raise of 12 per cent, with a minimum increase of 65 cents an hour, a number of job rate revisions, a cost-of-living clause and fringe benefits including a dental plan.

Present wages range from $4.45 an hour for laborers to $7 an hour for head sawyers.

The president of the New Westminster IWA, Gerry Stoney, said 80 per cent of his members would get only 65 cents an hour more because the wage revisions applied to only a few members in his local.

Other local executive boards were also making recommendations to their members but they declined to disclose them ahead of meetings.

Munro again appealed to IWA members who have walked out to return to work.

"There was no need to have missed any work. We attempted to keep them on the job but some irresponsible people set up picket lines. It would be silly to continue to lose work," he said.

N-War Threatened

CAIRO (AP) — The semi-official Egyptian newspaper Al Ahram warned today that the next Middle East war might be a nuclear confrontation.

Alberta Counting New Forest Fires

EDMONTON (CP) — Alberta Forest Service (AFS) officials were still counting new forest fires early today after a lightning storm Sunday night which started at least 20 new forest fires in northern Alberta's tinder-dry forests.

More trouble is expected tonight as widespread thunder and lightning storms are being forecast by AFS weather officers in in Edmonton.

The storm brought to at least 37 the number of fires still burning in the province. Only one remains out of control. The major blaze at Judy Creek, 160 miles northwest of here, was brought under control Saturday.

About 1,000 men remain on the fire lines, fighting blazes which have blackened more than 50,000 acres of prime forest. The Judy Creek fire burned more than 30,000 acres and the Rock Island Lake fire near Slave Lake about 10,000 acres.

AFS officials had hoped wet weather during the weekend would bring and end to new forest fires. Instead, hot and dry weather continued, bringing on lightning and thunder storms over wide areas of central and northern Alberta.

Temperatures are predicted to reach 80 degrees in all areas of northern Alberta today. Thunder and lightning storms are predicted for late this afternoon and tonight in most areas.

Firefighting crews which are no longer needed at fires now under control have been moved to central areas in preparation for quick movement to new spot fires, said AFS officials.

Three Canso water bombers were moved Sunday from Slave Lake to the Lac La Biche area to be in a more central location to move into new fire areas.

Tory Hits $1 Bill Art

SASKATOON (CP) — For one Saskatoon candidate at least, the new $1 bill has become an election issue.

Conservative candidate Eugene Rheaume, running in Saskatoon-Humboldt, says in newspaper advertisements that "Trudeau has taken the prairie scene off the $1 bill and replaced it with something he thinks is more Canadian than the West.

CABINET ENLARGED

Fort George MLA Alf Nunweiler has been appointed to the cabinet as a minister without portfolio responsible for northern development.

The appointment, rumored for several weeks, was announced Saturday by Premier Dave Barrett in Prince George.

Nunweiler will also become a director of the government-owned B.C. Railway.

Elsewhere in B.C. another 4,000 Indians were slated to carry out local demonstrations.

Men, women and children will march the three miles from Songhees to the legislative lawns for the mass demonstration Tuesday, carrying placards and camping in tents they started pitching today.

Their route will be via Admirals, Esquimalt, Johnson Street bridge, Wharf Government and Belleville.

Native people want action on inadequate housing, better education and an end to welfare-oriented programs.

They seek action on high unemployment, high numbers of Indians in jails, unfair provincial taxation and the lack of "a true economic base for Indian reserves."

Today's celebration marks the end of 100 years of hostile treatment by whites, the Indians say, and now they are entering a new period of resurgence.

Dancing, Indian games, singing and an open forum for native speakers are on today's program.

To help the celebration, bands from various points have donated cash, 500 pounds of clams, a cow, printing and services.

'Overlooked' Troops Voting

TEL AVIV (CP) — Canadians serving with the United Nations in the Middle East started voting today, with many men from Cairo to the Golan Heights complaining that they have been overlooked by the politicians back home.

The first man to cast his advance overseas service vote for the July 8 general election was Pte. Wayne Talbot, 27, a native of of Woodstock, Ont., who said he didn't even know the name of the candidates in his adopted constituency of Huron-Middlesex.

"I don't have any information at all about what is going on," he said. "I made up my mind when I saw the ballot."

"I've been almost five years in the service and I never received anything from any person who wanted me to vote for them. And the newspapers we get over here are at least three weeks out of date so we don't even know what the real election issues are."

A number of other men serving with the United Nations Emergency Force (UNEF) at Camp Shams, near Cairo, also complained that they did not know any details of the various party platforms.

Talbot, although he grew up in Woodstock, now votes in the Middlesex constituency because his parents live there, at Parkhill, about 40 miles north of London, Ont. He has only been there on leave, "for one or two weeks at a time."

About the only piece of election information all men have received is a notice from Gen. J. A. Dextraze, chief of the defence staff, saying the right to vote "means carefully considering the platforms of the parties and the abilities of the party leaders, as well as considering the capabilities and the qualifications of the candidates in your own constituency."

One officer, who asked not to be identified, scanned the document during a tea break in a tent in Quneitra a couple days ago and commented: "This is precisely what we have not had an opportunity to do—carefully consider the platforms of the parties."

Sons Sold for $24

NASHVILLE (UPI) — Authorities throughout the southeast were alerted today to be on the lookout for a couple said to have sold their two young sons for $24 to a man they met at a flea market.

A woman identified only as a "Mrs. Williams" said she saw the transaction take place Sunday at the state fairgrounds and the children left with a man in a car bearing Virginia license plates.

Police were attempting to track down "Mrs. Williams," who passed the story on to flea market operator Fred Hicks, to see if they could learn any more about the couple, identifed as Charles and Jo Anne Keyes.

Cross Kidnappers Crop Up in Paris

PARIS (Reuter) — Two Quebec separatists who kidnapped British diplomat James Cross four years ago have arrived in the French capital and police here said today they have no reason to arrest them.

"Jean-Marc Carbonneau and Jacques Lanctot, arrived here from Prague last week along with three other people," a police spokesman said.

"But we have no international arrest warrant concerning them and therefore no reason to hold them."

The spokesman declined any other comment.

Carbonneau, 41, and Lanctot, 29, both members of the Quebec Liberation Front (FLQ), kidnapped Cross in October, 1970, and asked for $500,000 ransom, the release of imprisoned FLQ members and other conditions in exchange for his release.

The two men and third kidnapper Jacques Cossette-Trudel were flown to Cuba from Canada two months later on board a military plane after negotiations held on the grounds of the 1967 World's Fair on St. Helen's Island, Montreal. Cross was freed unharmed.

French officials did not know whether the group, which arrived last week, had gone to Prague from Havana.

But Canadian officials here said they knew that Lanctot and his wife, who is among those now in Paris, were unhappy with life in Cuba.

French officials said privately that even if Canada were to request the extradition of the FLQ group, it would be denied since France does not extradite to their home countries persons wanted in politically-connected cases.

Canadian officials here said it does not seem probable that Canada will seek their extradition.

In Ottawa, a spokesman for the external affairs department said the department is aware of the reports and is checking the matter.

As to whether France would refuse to extradite the two, the spokesman said it was a matter open to interpretation.

A French official had been quoted as saying extradition would be denied since France does not extradite persons wanted in politically-connected cases.

Lawyers and judges would have to decide whether the Cross kidnapping was political or criminal, the spokesman said.

Union Aid Vowed

VANCOUVER (CP) — A spokesman for the United Fishermen and Allied Workers' Union says the union will represent striking freshwater fishermen in Alberta and the Northwest Territories.

Homer Stevens, president of the British Columbia-based union, said Sunday the UFAWU will represent the fishermen in talks with freshwater fish marketing corp.

About 250 to 300 fishermen on Great Slave Lake in the Northwest Territories and 100 to 150 on Lesser Slave Lake in Alberta have been on strike for two weeks, demanding higher prices for whitefish.

Stevens, just returned from a trip to Hay River, N.W.T., said steps are being taken to charter union locals for the fishermen.

Freshwater fish marketing is a crown corporation, controlling production, collection, processing and marketing of freshwater fish from the B.C. border to northwestern Ontario and throughout the territories. Fishermen are forced by law to sell to the corporation.

Stevens said the company, which processes 50 million pounds of fish annually caught by 6,000 fishermen, has "refused to budge an inch."

Many of the fishermen are losing money, he added.

Talks in the dispute were last held June 5 and the strike began June 7 at Great Slave Lake and June 10 at Lesser Slave Lake.

The union will accept a company request for talks to be held Tuesday or Wednesday in Hay River if it is assured that federal department officials have been informed of the situation, he said.

The fisherman have asked for a 10-cent-a-pound increase in the price of whitefish. At Lesser Slave Lake fishermen get between 11.5 cents and 20.5 cents a pound for whitefish, depending on the size.

98% Say No Deal

VANCOUVER (CP) — Some 875 members of the International Brotherhood of Boilermakers, Local 359, have voted 98 per cent to reject the latest contract offer from the Construction Labor Relations Association.

The construction industry in British Columbia has been hampered by strikes since May 1 when the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers started walking off job sites.

The boilermakers also voted to strike if necessary, but union business agent Don Vinoly said Sunday the union is still prepared to negotiate with the CLRA, bargaining agent for 850 British Columbia contractors.

The agreement rejected by the boilermakers is similar to that accepted last week by 10 construction unions which bargain jointly.

He said the offer would give the men a $2.90-an-hour increase in wages and benefits on a base rate of $8.50 an hour in wages and benefits. But, he added, the initial increase would be 95 cents on the date of signing.

Other construction unions have been offered the same $2.90 increase.

Choosing a Champion

The so-called "Liberal split" which finds two MLAs — Mr. Williams and Dr. McGeer — professedly willing to join a united, single-party effort to overthrow the NDP government, may be said to represent the quandary of the larger public which seeks some way to get rid of the socialist regime.

The division of the province's non-socialist vote into three parts — Liberal, Social Credit and Conservative — is seen as a handicap in achieving that result. But the various forms of association by which an NDP defeat might be brought about at the polls could spell political disaster for the component parties.

Still all too clear in many Liberal and Conservative minds is the 20-year twilight into which both parties were plunged provincially as a result of amalgamation to keep the CCF from gaining office in 1941. The merger of the parties' fortunes for a single objective left a vacuum which was filled by the rising Social Credit movement, whose reign ended only two years ago when the NDP finally displaced the aging Bennett administration.

Re-organization of the anti-socialist opposition into a totally new organization, such as the current effort to create a "Majority Movement," could have the same effect on the old-line parties, which today are still trying to restore their historic position in provincial politics. And a rally under the banner of the Social Credit party, led by ex-Premier Bennett's son, would hardly be possible for followers of the parties which spent two decades fighting the Socred regime on every front.

It is not enough just to form any organization which might rout the NDP at the polls. The mere defeat of the present government, welcome as that would be to the many British Columbians who are alarmed at the authoritarian trend provincial events are taking, would not be sufficient. A successful political movement must have a positive program as well as a negative purpose, and it is obvious that any amalgam, on any conceivable basis, would not long contain three such diverse elements as the Social Credit, Liberal and Conservative entities. It would be difficult to convince the public that such a group would be viable once it had achieved its objective of turfing out the socialists.

Government of this province should entail more than merely winning at the polls: it must be based on the implementation of policies better than the policies offered by the opposing forces. What could the three non-socialist parties get together on that would keep them in office after a win on election day?

Liberal Leader Anderson has a good point in his statement that since his party is a middle-of-the-road organization, a swing to the right in order to join the other two parties, while acceptable to many Liberal supporters, could also drive the rest of them into the NDP camp.

The proposal for an anti-socialist coalition is a move of desperation. The proper medium for the NDP's defeat should remain a single party which can rally enough popular support for the job. That party is not likely to be the one which has just been thrown out of office for a multitude of reasons built up over two decades; nor is it likely to be the party which today can muster only two members in the Legislature, at least one of whom is ready to jump the party ranks. That leaves the Liberals, still floundering in the opposition benches with five members, but the only party which potentially could prove attractive to many of the voters who marked their ballots for the NDP two years ago but are now disturbed and disillusioned by the trend of the socialist government. But the Liberals will have to solve their internal bickering first.

In the long run, elections must be won by the individual candidates in the constituencies. The party with the largest number of acceptable represenatives will win the most seats. But those representatives must provide more in the way of background than merely popping into the public eye at election time and expecting to be handed the responsibility of governing the province.

Finding Out Who Owns B.C.

Exercising a caution noticeably absent from some of its legislation, the provincial government now requires land purchasers to list their country of residence and citizenship. Unlike some countries which forbid the sale of land to foreigners, or even a few provinces where special tax levies are laid on foreigners, the new provincial land registry act exercises discretion.

For the first time in history the government will know how much of the province is in foreign hands. Over the years rumors of German barons, Hong Kong merchants and American entrepreneurs gobbling up provincial land have fed nationalistic concern. If the problem lives up to the rumors, the government should act to slow down foreign acquisition through taxation or by making landed immigrant status a prerequisite for acquiring large tracts. But these are extreme solutions that would only be in order if much of any one region, such as the Gulf Islands, were coming under foreign control.

But the figures may not substantiate the rumors, and there may be no need to interfere with an individual's right to sell his property to whomever he wishes. In the long run, the well-conceived legislation will at least arm the government with the facts to examine a murky area.

". . . that'll enable people to get faster from the homes they haven't got to the jobs they haven't got either . . ."

LETTERS FROM OUR READERS

Vandals

On June 16 I visited Gonzales Beach and was shocked to see its handsome boulder completely vandalized with imitation Indian designs in garish colors.

I had just returned from searching out and studying the subtle and sophisticated beauty of the rock art left us by generations of highly sensitive and artistic Indians of the interior of this province. Much vandalism was encountered, including scrawled obscenities, initials, graduation dates.

The vandalism on Gonzales Beach is the worst I have ever seen in North America, for it was clearly planned and must have taken hours to complete. The persons involved destroyed one beautiful boulder and its environment; they stole designs from Indians and made them into a mockery.

May I appeal to your newspaper to condemn this act of vandalism and help to prevent future contamination of our landscape. May I also suggest that legislation be initiated to give police authority to arrest offenders on the scene, whether it be municipal, provincial or federal territory involved. — Lilo Berliner, 2142 Marne St.

Putting Green

Regards the controversial proposed putting green adjacent to the Robert Burns memorial in Beacon Hill Park. One does not have to wonder what Rabbie's reaction would have been! I'm sure he would have looked on the enjoyment of people around his statue as something dear to his socialist heart.

The outcry of Scottish groups decrying the putting green around his statue is in keeping with their zest for everything Scottish — alas, the greater percentage of these people didn't wear a kilt, dance a Scottish country dance or belong to a society until they came to Canada.

This all brings to mind the putting green in the village in Argyll where I come from. Our war memorial is by the putting green, and one has memories of my father and cronies like Father Sidney McEwan, the great singer, having fun with the putters.

I will be visiting there this summer, and when I putt on the green, under that Celtic Cross, I'll wish that a lot of names on that memorial were putting with me as we did in our youth. — W. Brodie, 1756 Barrie Rd.

Cop Out

No one should be surprised that the NDP government would inevitably cop out on its promise to have all government work done by union labor. It may be a clue of what is to come that they first did it via an organization called The Christian Labor Alliance. The prefix, Christian, raises questions about discrimination, human rights, etc.

A seeming paradox is that the first open attack on this question should come from an employer organization. While no one can have any illusion about their motivation, should not this attack have been the obligation of the professional unionists? Or can it be that their political loyalties (maybe ambitions) are stronger than is their commitment to the ones who pay their salaries? Perhaps too many of them have greedy eyes for some of those juicy positions the NDP has been handing out to professional unionists.

History records more than one example of anti-working-class elements using unions as a stepping stone to political power. The most outrageous were Hitler's Nazis and Mussolini's Fascists. Of lesser severity is the British Labor Party. Only time will tell exactly where the NDP will fit into this spectrum but it does fit into the common denominator of the rest. All fraudulently did what they did under the name of Socialism without the slightest idea what the word meant.

When ambitious professional unionists start holding hands with the government let the workers beware.—Larry Tickner, 589 Nora Place.

Sewage

Another poor Alderman (Wm. Campbell) lost in the mire of talk, talk, talk, recently wrote: "There is also every possibility that new ways of disposing of sewage will be discovered in the years ahead." Ye gods and poisoned fishes!

Can they never learn that sewage plants which turn out pure water, acres of vegetable gardens and tons of natural fertilizer, have been used for umpteen years in civilized countries?

No, "they" would rather continue to waste millions of dollars (to the coffers of cement corporations) for piping sewage out to sea to feed the fishes we are supposed to buy and eat, than use one of the several well known methods.

Really, is there no man on our councils who can learn from others' successes?

Having tried for ten years to put this across, and "they" having wasted millions of dollars on barbaric methods, I have almost given up to a lot of ignorami — but being a Leo I doubt that I can. — G. F. Beale, 87 Chown Place.

White Paper

I trust that the public will recognize that Mrs. Blanchet's demonstration at the Legislative Buildings was in effect a submission to the Legislature in regard to Item 4 of the White Paper on education. Mrs. Blanchet did not plan things that way, but her timing could not have been more appropriate.

In May the Select Standing Committee on Health, Education, and Human Resources, through letters to school boards and teachers' organizations and through public advertisement, called for the presentation of briefs on Item 4, which deals with school district organization and administration. The date of the Victoria hearing was May 28.

I submitted a short brief saying that discussion on education should include careful consideration of the advantages of having teachers as civil servants.

High on my list was the statement that school boards in the province have been known to discriminate against highly qualified teachers because of the salary rating as required by the teachers' certification. This is what Mrs. Blanchet has been trying to impress on us.

I propose that the public give close attention to all newspaper accounts of the hearings in Item 4 and to the Legislative report on the findings. Furthermore, I recommend that the public write to the Minister of Education for copies of the White Paper, which was presented to the House by the minister on March 20 — (Miss) Hilda Marshall, No. 16, 820 Fisgard Street.

Equality

So Thomas Scallen finally was sent to jail for a sentence of two years which means that he will be eligible for release in about 18 months if he is not released, under parole, before that.

In spite of his battery of first-class lawyers Scallen was convicted by a jury of his peers of misappropriating $3 million and was sentenced by the first court to four years. This was appealed and the Court of Appeal reduced the sentence to two years. This sentence was appealed to the Supreme Court of Canada. However this appeal was not allowed and Scallen was jailed.

We boast of equality before the Law and there is no doubt that there is one law for all Canadians but I am wondering how many Canadians could afford such law procedures and secondly I feel that the sentence is, in no way, commensurate with the missappropriation of such a large sum. When one reads the sentences handed down to men and women less fortunate than Mr. Scallen it makes one wonder if indeed we do have equality before the Law. — M. P. B. Wrixon, 1701 Cedar Hill Cross Rd.

For Balance

I take strong exception to the recent article on cocaine, published in your newspaper (June 15). Mr. Sidenius gives the impression that cocaine is non-addictive "the user can take it or leave it" yet in the next sentence ". . . the problem is that those who take it generally want more."

The general thrust of the article is that "coke-heads" enjoy unparalleled euphoria, "superhuman qualities" and suffer little or no ill-effects. There are other results of cocaine input — irritability, both mental and physical, depression, persecution complex, constant itching — all in the large economy size. The "crazy hophead" of fiction, who runs berserk, is not that fictional . . but he is a cocaine addict, not a heroin addict. An excellent description of cocaine addiction is to be found in "The Mask of Dimitrios" by Eric Ambler (PP 184-186 in the Victoria Library copy).

May we hope for a rather more balanced account in any future stories by Mr. Sidenius? The drug problem is acute enough without encouragement by slanted stories of this type in respected media. — M. C. Hall-Patch, 2643 Cavendish.

WILLIAM R. FRYE

Perilously Uncertain Outcome

OTTAWA — The North Atlantic Alliance is a very different organization this spring from the one which fought within itself during the Yom Kippur War. Last December, in Brussels, the reliability of the American nuclear umbrella in Europe was publicly questioned; last week, there was a ringing declaration of solidarity and shared purpose.

Much of the improvement is real. But it would be a mistake to take wholly at face value the vows of eternal fealty which were proclaimed in NATO's 25th "wedding anniversary" here. Serious differences remain.

The most fundamental of these differences is over the wisdom and value of a superficial easing of tensions with the Soviet Union. There is much talk among Europeans of "a phony detente," and much skepticism that Moscow will ever agree to a real one.

"The truth of the matter is," NATO Secretary-General Joseph Luns said, ". . . that to Moscow, detente seems to be a one-way process serving the exclusive interests of the Soviet Union."

Superficial Detente

But influential Europeans fear the United States may agree to a superficial detente, in part to preserve Nixon's image as a peace-maker but more importantly because it could pay dividends in parts of the world other than Europe, such as the Middle East.

There is urgent fear that Nixon may give away too much in Moscow when he meets with Soviet Party Secretary Leonid Brezhnev.

Specifically, they fear he may agree to an extension of the 1972-1977 Soviet-American freeze on offensive nuclear missiles without adequate safeguards. Europeans — like some Administration critics in Congress — fear that in such conditions the Russians may be able to translate their present numerical advantage in land-based missile launchers into a meaningful strategic superiority.

This superiority could tip the military and political balance of power in Europe, even if the Soviet superiority were more apparent than real.

Europeans also are worried that Nixon may let himself be talked into approving a 35-nation European summit conference (a so-called "third stage" of the Conference on Security and Co-operation in Europe) before the Kremlin has agreed to correct the basic cause of tension in Europe: the partition of the continent into hostile, non-communicating blocs.

Europeans want to end the Cold War — if it is to be ended — on terms which will create an authentically new Europe, one in which the military threat of the Soviet Union is really ended and in which an Iron Curtain no longer blocks the free exchange of people and ideas.

LEONID BREZHNEV
. . . phony detente?

They are not willing to settle for less, even if the alternative is a revival of Cold-War tensions and Soviet sabotage of Mideast peace moves. They think the United States may be willing to settle for less.

Nixon encouraged these fears June 5 when he argued, in a major speech at Annapolis, that it was not necessary or desirable to "intervene directly" in an adversary's "domestic affairs" — that is, to seek liberalization of the Soviet system — in order to live in peace with him.

Europeans think it may be both necessary and desirable. They do not want to envisage life in a Western Europe which has let down its guard while the Soviet Bloc remains a strongly armed, closed society.

Soviet representatives in all the key East-West negotiations currently under way — the Strategic Arms Limitation (S.A.L.T.) Talks, the European Security Conference, the Search for Mutual and Balanced Force Reductions (MBFR) — have been stonewalling. Some of the tough talk in NATO is a counter-tactic, but not all. There is serious doubt that useful agreements can be reached.

Secretary of State Henry Kissinger has heard these worries in private here last week, and Nixon will hear them again in Brussels June 26 when he consults with NATO about his Moscow visit. Canadians generally sympathize with the European view, leaving Washington virtually isolated.

There is a superficial parallel between this allied criticism of the Administration and resistance to detente from Capitol Hill in Washington. But Europeans are not really on the same wave length as Senator Henry Jackson.

Fundamental Changes

Europeans want to exchange Western concessions, not for something as peripheral (as they see it) as free emigration of Soviet Jews, but for more fundamental things like reduction of Warsaw Pact conventional forces, forewarning and observation of rival troop movements, erosion of the Iron Curtain, and a liberalization of Soviet society.

Europeans see Jackson as disrupting the bargaining process by concentrating on lesser demands and withholding from Western negotiators one of their most valuable bargaining chips, notably non-discriminatory trade between the United States and the Soviet Bloc.

NATO's purpose, 25 years ago, was to build a defensive posture so strong that eventually the Soviet Union would wish to negotiate an authentic Cold-War peace. Negotiations to that end have begun, but their outcome is perilously uncertain. And last week it became clear that Western tactics are by no means sufficiently agreed.

On the Record

With reference to your item headed Bayonets Ready on City Streets in your issue of June 15, may I point out that your statement that this famous regiment the Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry was formed on the eve of World War II, is incorrect as it was actually raised just after war broke out on August 4, 1914 and was composed largely of men who had seen action with British regiments in earlier campaigns.

'Hammy Gault' as we who knew him fondly called him, financed the creation of the PPCLI and went over with them as a Major, he having been in the Canadian Militia for some years.

On the Ypres front Hamilton Gault was wounded and suffered the loss of a limb but after recuperating and having been fixed up with, as he called it, a tin one, he returned to France and there was hell to pay when he turned up in the front line hopping around on it. So, he was promptly returned to England and his days of action were over.

During the second world war I had the privilege of having a Brigadier by the name of Hamilton Gault and a finer gentleman and soldier I never knew. But alas his days as a soldier were near an end when during an air raid he stumbled into an air-raid shelter and broke his one and only good one, so hors de combat we lost a good Brigadier and he was finally returned to Canada.

I just thought this brief history of the PPCLI would let the younger members of this famous regiment know the kind of men it had in it.

I was not in the PPCLI but knew a lot of the guys in it. I was in the 24th B'n V.R.C. — A. D. McCrindle, 404 - 999 Heywood Way.

60 YEARS AGO

From the Times of June 24, 1914

ATLANTIC CITY — Feeble mindedness, sin and disease were today characterized as the principal causes of poverty by physicians and surgeons attending the sectional meeting of the American Medical Association. Dr. Hurty of Indianapolis, a member of the committee on poverty, declared the normal person never sank to the level of poverty. In the main he said poverty was caused by sins unmentionable in a public gathering. The eradication of sin and disease, he said, would remove poverty. The infant incubator, he added, has been more of a failure than a success and experiments with the device should be discontinued.

Impressions Of China

By ROLAND BARTHES

(French critic Barthes recently returned from a three-week visit to China and wrote this article for Le Monde.)

In tranquilly dim reception rooms, the people we talked to — workers, professors, peasants patiently and industriously took notes; no one was bored, and there was a peaceful impression of engagement in a common task. Above all, these groups were attentive, singularly attentive, not to who we were but to what we had to say.

It was as though, faced with a handful of anonymous intellectuals, it was still important for this immense people to be recognized and understood, as though the response they wanted from their foreign friends was not militant agreement but simple acceptance.

We went off to China equipped with a thousand vital and, it seemed to us, natural questions: about sex, the role of women, the family, morality; about the humanities, linguistics, psychiatry. We shook the tree of knowledge to bring down answers that would enable us to come back home with a supply of our main intellectual provender: cracked secrets.

But nothing fell out of the tree. In a way, we've come back — politics aside — empty-handed. Consequently we've been wondering: what if the object of all these so terribly important questions — sex, the "subject," language, knowledge — are only historical and geographical particularities, the idioms of civilization? We wanted to find impenetrable barriers so that we could penetrate them; through some kind of ideological atavism we are decoding, interpretative animals, convinced that our intellectual end is always to find a meaning.

China seems to resist giving up this meaning, not because it conceals it, but, more subversively, because (in a manner that is hardly Confucian) it dismantles concepts, themes, names. It doesn't fragment the targets of knowledge as we do, but the semantic field is disorganized; the question indiscreetly posed in regard to meaning is reversed to call meaning into question, to turn out knowledge into phantasmagoria. The ideological ends of our elaborated society are silently declared "impertinent" — decidedly not pertinent. This marks the abandonment of the principles of methodological interpretation.

We left the turbulent world of symbols behind us; then, to enter a very large, very old and very new country where what linguists call the signifier is so discreet as to be rare. At that moment, a new horizon revealed itself: one of delicacy, or even more appropriate, if I may hazard the word now to take it up again later, insipidity.

Aside from its ancient palaces, propaganda posters, children's ballets and May Day celebrations, China is not colourful. The countryside, at least what we saw of it, which wasn't that of the landscapes in old Chinese paintings, is flat: no history-laden objects jut from it, no church towers or manor houses. In the distance, a couple of grey buffalo, a tractor, regularly laid out but asymmetrical fields, a group of blue-clad workers: that's all. What's left is rose-beige as far as you can see, or tinted the pale green of wheat and rice fields. Sometimes, always pastel, there is a glaze of yellow colza or a mauve flower that is apparently used for fertilizer. There was no feeling of being in a foreign place.

The green tea served on every occasion, one's covered cup regularly replenished, is insipid. It could be said to exist only as a subtle, gentle ritual useful for punctuating meetings, discussions, train trips. A sip of tea from time to time, a mild cigarette, and the spoken word takes on a silent, pacific quality (like, we felt, what went on in the workshops we visited). Tea is courteous, even friendly, and distant too.

As for the body, there is an apparent banishment of every sort of vanity: no fashions, no make-up; clothes are uniform, gestures prosaic. These absences multiplied by the thousands in the dense crowds lead to the outrageous, perhaps anguishing, observation that the body is no longer an object to be understood: that in China it stubbornly persists in meaninglessness, refusing (except in the theatre) to take on any kind of erotic or dramatic significance.

Did I refer earlier to "insipidity"? Another phrase comes to mind, more apt: China is peaceful. Isn't peace (to which Chinese onomastic studies of word origins so often refer) the place, for us a Utopia, where the war of the senses has been abolished? In China, sense is cancelled and excluded from all those areas where we Westerners track it down; but it remains alive, armed, articulate, on the offensive, where we least like to find it; in politics.

Signifiers — which overburden sense, making it overflow further in the direction of desire — are rare. Nevertheless, here are three, in no particular order of importance. First, Chinese cuisine, which as we know is the most complicated in the world. Next, since they are present in enormous, brimming quantities, children, whom we never tired of devouring with our eyes, so diverse are their always incongruous (and never simpering) expressions.

Finally, there is calligraphy, undoubtedly the major signifier in China. As manifested in the ubiquitous wall newspapers, the brush of the anonymous writer (a worker or peasant), incredibly impulsive (as we were able to see in a calligraphic studio), compresses into a single act physical and aggressive, tensions. The writing of Mao, reproduced big and small, sign all Chinese open spaces, from factory sheds to parks and bridges, with a lyrical, elegant and luxuriant "grand jete": an admirable, omnipresent art more convincing, to us, than the attempts at heroic hagiography borrowed from another culture.

In short, almost the only thing China offers up to Western scrutiny is its political Word. This Word is everywhere; not a corner escapes it; in every speech we heard, Nature (the natural, the eternal) no longer played a part (except in regard to one curiously resistant point: the family, which seems to be exempt from the current tirades against Confucius).

And yet, here again, to discover the Word (what we today call the Word), you have to submit to a vast sweep of repetitions. All discourse seems, in fact, to follow a road paved with cliches that cover the same ground, analogous to the programmed elements cyberneticists call "stacks."

No freedom, then? Yes. Beneath the rhetorical crust, the Word spreads (desire, intelligence, struggle, work, everything that divides, overflows, disperses).

These cliches are first of all combined differently by each speaker, not according to some aesthetic of originality but according to how vital or not is the impulse of his political consciousness (relying on the same code, what a difference there was between the petrified speech of a leader in a people's commune and the precise, topical analysis deliverted by a Shanghai shipyard worker!).

Next, speech is always a representation, in the style of an epic poem, of the conflict between two "lines"; undoubtedly we, as foreigners, we're sensitive only to the triumphal line. But it is never triumph for the sake of triumph; it is an alert, a movement to continually prevent the revolution from taking on fat, becoming congested or congealed.

Finally, this apparently highly coded speech in no way excludes imagination, and I would almost go so far as to say it does not exclude a certain playfulness either. Take the current campaign against Confucius and Lin Piao: it is carried on everywhere a thousand different ways: even its name, "Pilin-Pikong," has a joyful bell-like ring to it, and here and there it manifests itself in an imaginative game: A caricature, a poem, a children's playlet in which between a couple of ballets a heavily made-up little girl suddenly lunges at the ghost of Lin Piao. The political Word (and it alone) engenders these small "happenings."

The historian Jules Michelet likened his vision of France to great prose, a smooth, transparent neutrality of language and social organization. By getting rid of personalities; by mixing social classes (which probably amounts to the same thing), China has become eminently "prosaic."

China, the site of a great historical experiment, is not littered with heroes. You could say that heroism is installed, like an abscess, in opera and ballet or the propaganda posters, where it is always (out of honour or spite?) women who are saddled with political gallantry, while in the streets, factories, schools and on the country roads, a people (which, in 25 years, has already managed to construct a considerable nation) moves about, does its jobs, drinks its tea and performs its lonely callisthenics untheatrically, unboisterously, unpretentiously — in short, unhysterically.

A CHESS GAME . . . PEACEFUL OR INSPIRED?

India's Motives May Be Justified

By CHESTER RONNING
(A Letter to the Editor of The Globe and Mail)

Canadians were naturally disturbed and concerned suddenly to learn that India had exploded an undgerground-nuclear device.

Canada had assisted India in constructing two reactors. One of these, an experimental research plant known as the Canada-India Reactor, was at Trembay near Bombay. It was a joint undertaking. Canada provided the nuclear equipment and its installation by Canadian experts as an outright grant under the Colombo Plan. India provided the building necessary for the reactor under the direction of Dr. Homi Bhabha. The reactor became critical in July, 1960.

The second plant, at Ranapratapsagar in Rajasthan, was to be completed in two stages. It was also a joint undertaking for which Canada supplied the plans and consulting engineers. India assumed responsibility for installation of the nuclear equipment and financing the project, obtaining a loan from Canada, not a grant. The first phase of this reactor became critical in 1972.

As the Canadian High Commissioner in India from 1957 to 1964, I was involved in reaching the safeguard agreements for the two reactors. The main clause in each was India's declaration that the reactor would be used for peaceful purposes only. To enforce that undertaking the Parliament of India passed the Atomic Energy Act of 1962 providing for the control and use of atomic energy in India only for peaceful purposes.

The question raised by India's nuclear explosion is whether it constitutes a violation of that solemn declaration. On the basis of the history of the development of atomic bombs, underground explosions have been a preliminary step to the perfection of aerial bombs.

It is also true, however, that underground explosions have been and can be used for peaceful purposes.

India continues to declare as firmly as ever that the sole purpose of the recent explosion was for peaceful purposes. As yet, India has not violated that declaration of motives.

Canadians are entitled to be informed whether India has violated any part of the safeguard agreements with Canada. It should be remembered that India had already developed at least one small atomic reactor prior to the construction of the Canada-India Reactor. I visited that reactor in 1957, which had been functioning for some time. Also, India had perfected the technique of developing uranium fuel for the Canada-India Reactor and had manufactured a portion of the rods used for the first loading. India has declared that the plutonium employed in the underground explosion was not of Canadian origin. India declares emphatically that the agreements with Canada have not been violated.

India has, of course defied the Non-Proliferation Treaty which India opposed from the beginning as being discriminatory. India refused to sign that futile attempt of the super powers to prevent lesser powers from endangering world peace while they retained their stock piles of nuclear bombs either one or which could destroy mankind.

James Reston of The New York Times in commenting on India's recent underground explosion says:

"India may have done the world a favor, if only by reminding everybody, including the United States and the Soviet Union, of the dangers of nuclear proliferation, and the fragility of a world system that has to encourage nuclear development for peace-time purposes and control it for the common security."

India's refusal to sign and agree to the Non-Proliferation Treaty does not brand India as a violator of the sincerity of its motives with respect to the use of nuclear power only for peaceful purposes.

THE MALT SHOP SYNDROME

Just One of the Guys

By DAN TURNER
The Toronto Star

"Hi, guys! Hi, gals!"

It's John Turner—hey—John Turner, the finance minister, and isn't he just as handsome as in his pictures—wow, those eyes!

And it's a campaign headquarters, a busy, efficient, no-nonsense campaign headquarters, but John Turner is walking in and it isn't a campaign headquarters at all any more.

It's a malt shop! And it's 1947 and John is just one of the guys, except that he's the country's 100-metre-dash champion again and he's a Rhodes Scholar.

And when he walks into the malt shop, you know he's something special and he isn't hiding it either, but he's no snob to the guys and no snob to the gals.

He gives you that 1947 malt-shop feeling by calling you just that —guys and gals—and by greeting you with the kind of buoyancy that went with that time, a war being over and a booming economy.

And if it's 1974 and you're a little gloomy because Statistics Canada has just reported that the cost-of-living index is up by 10.9 per cent in a year, well, shake it off, he tells you—things can be serious without getting you down.

TURNER . . . buoyancy from another era

Why is he here—in Mississauga and York West and all these other ridings—when he's fighting to retain his own seat of Ottawa-Carleton?

"You've got to be a team player," he says. "You've got to take your chance.

"The cost of living and the budget are the two most important issues of the election campaign, and I've got a responsibility to the Liberal Party and the people of Canada to come out and sell our story."

So for the last three days Turner has been firing bursts of statistics at gatherings of businessmen and at coffee parties in a dozen Ontario ridings, and at the end of every meeting someone at the back of the room is sure to say:

"He's the next prime minister of Canada," or "I see him as the man of the future, after Trudeau."

Someone always says that. In fact, in 1972, even Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau's father-in-law, James Sinclair, fisheries minister in Louis St. Laurent's cabinet from 1952 to 1957, said that.

For the moment, though, Turner is out playing for the team. If the team loses, Turner—the finance minister over whose budget the government fell—could be blamed for blowing the game.

He tells his audiences that Canadian voters have not had such a clear-cut choice in economic policies between the Progressive Conservatives and Liberals since the 1911 fight over completely free trade between Canada and the U.S.

"They won't work," he tells shopkeepers and housewives and corporation presidents.

"I think the United States threw itself into a depression with wage and price controls.

"Canada's projected growth rate for this year is between 5 and 5.5 per cent after inflation. In the States it's between zero and 1 per cent.

"The problem is supply and demand—insatiable demand and inadequate supply.

"The solution is to raise the supply—through measures like our corporate tax cuts—and anything that doesn't go that route is pure cosmetics."

That is the message.

The medium is still an attractive package at 45, with his clear blue eyes, silver hair, movie-star features and easy, confident manner.

He is one of the select politicians in the country, in the company of Trudeau and former prime minister John Diefenbaker, who can cause a stir on any street in the country.

He lacks Trudeau's poetry, Stanfield's modesty.

But he is unhampered by Trudeau's shyness, Stanfield's awkwardness.

Every voter he meets gets at least a few moments of full attention, a direct stare from the famous blue eyes, a question, a thick handshake.

Every candidate gets full benefit, because Turner never disengages without reminding the voter about the fineness of the local man beside him, the man he has to vote for if he has any concern about the country at all.

The silver-haired boy, the heir apparent.

But what about that consumer price index? Does the finance portfolio really ruin the political future of everyone who tackles it?

"I hope these figures don't provoke people to take a chance on counter-productive economic policies, like wage and price controls," says the finance minister.

"I'm worried. You're goddammed right I'm worried. These figures aren't helpful to me at all."

37 years ago, car owners didn't worry too much about saving money on gas. Not when the price was only 19⁹/₁₀ cents.

It's a different story today.

With sky-high fuel prices, you're probably already doing everything possible to get more miles per gallon from your car.

But better mileage comes only if your engine operates at maximum efficiency, which requires special attention to lubrication.

That's where Bardahl additive oil comes in.

By adding Bardahl to your car's motor oil, you enhance the lubricating qualities of the oil. Bardahl's exclusive "polar organic" formula does this by creating a tough film layer that clings to metal surfaces, reducing wear and tear on vital engine parts.

The results show up in improved mileage and better performance.

For cars with less than 40,000 miles

For cars with over 40,000 miles

Bardahl B2 stabilizes engine oil to reduce oil burning and exhaust smoke, restores lost pep and power, improves gas mileage.

BARDAHL
The gas saver.

Bardahl B1 oil additive and Bardahl B2 oil stabilizer are available at automotive stores and selected service stations across Canada. Bardahl also makes 17 other fine automotive products to help your car run better.

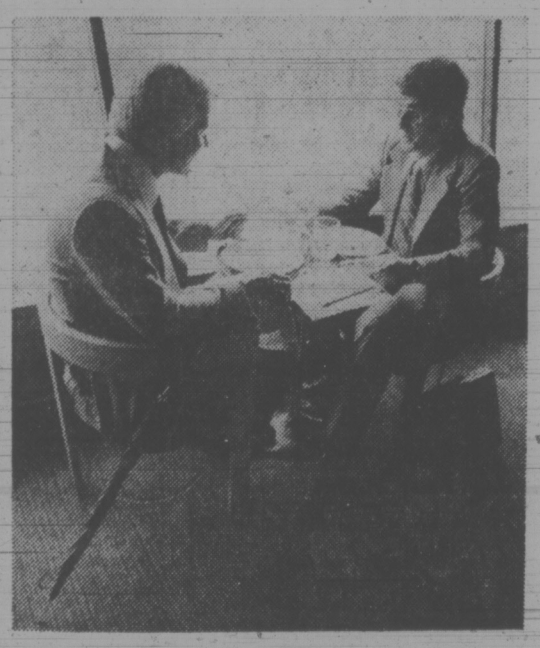
Sometimes the best place to talk to your Imperial Life man isn't the best place.



Meeting at the office to talk about your insurance program puts a very personal matter in a very business-like setting. And maybe that's not how you like it.

Maybe you'd like to meet with your Imperial Life agent where you feel comfortable enough to discuss every aspect of your family's immediate and future plans. Like at home with your wife. Or over lunch. Or anywhere you feel at ease and free to talk personally.

Because the more you can tell us, the more we can help you.

And that's when you'll notice your Imperial Life man isn't just an insurance salesman. We put him through an extensive training program. We teach him all he has to know about life insurance. And he has on call a team of experts — lawyers, accountants, estate planning specialists.

We continually keep him up-to-date on all the new developments. He can talk with you about Registered Savings Plans. Government pensions. Effective use of your company group benefits. Tax laws.

With re-training programs, seminars and additional courses our agents are constantly learning how to design more effective insurance programs to cover you and your family.

But that's something you'll discover, no matter where you talk.

Oil Spill Stains Mississippi River

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — Ship and barge traffic was halted entirely on a portion of the Mississippi River today so salvage crews could try to harness a breakaway barge that stained 30 miles of the channel with crude oil from its ruptured tanks.

The coast guard said vessels could continue moving in and out of the port of New Orleans from the Gulf of Mexico, but traffic heading farther north or coming downriver was stopped short of the accident.

The barge broke away from a tugboat Saturday and slammed into a support pier of the Huey P. Long bridge several miles upriver from New Orleans. Wedged against the pier by the current, the barge tilted on its side with one corner protruding above the surface.

Officials were reluctant to move it because of the possibility it could slip away again or spill more of its 23,000 barrels of oil.

Light vessels and ships drawing less than 18 feet of water were allowed to pass the area single file during the night under coast guard supervision. They were told to go slow so their wakes would not cause further damage.

A spokesman said there was no way of knowing how long the river would be closed.

"It will be shut down until this phase of the salvage is completed, once they feel either that they can't pull it off or they do pull it off," said coast guard spokesman Dave Cipra.

Cipra said the coast guard believed at least two of the 10 tanks on the barge had ruptured. Each tank held at least 2,300 barrels of oil.

Pyromaniac's Stamp In Spokane Fires

SPOKANE, Wash. (AP) — Fire investigators say they've come up with virtually no leads on 15 weekend fires in the metropolitan area, at least 10 described as arson.

Captain Paul Nolan, arson investigator for the Spokane Fire Department, said two persons were questioned briefly and released during one of the Saturday fires. Twelve were reported during a 6½-hour span, with three more at widely separated intervals late Saturday and Sunday.

Nolen said the 10 fires which were deliberately set were started in cardboard boxes, paper trash, old clothing — "Whatever was available."

He said almost every one looked like "a pyromaniac-type fire."

"It wasn't well-planned . . . it wasn't a revenge-type thing, either," he said. "Some of the fires went, some of them didn't."

Gary Schmidt, another department spokesman, said all the fires could have been started by one person but added there was a chance two persons were involved.

Most of the damage was reported at an apartment building, warehouses and a restaurant, but no damage estimate was available.

Other fires struck cars, trucks, trash containers and a vacant lot.

At one point the city's entire firefighting force was shifted to key locations when another two-alarm blaze was reported. And in two cases, motor vehicles were set ablaze near the scene of the fires.

Magic Ahead At Sidney Days

At age eight, North Saanich resident Albert LaCoste was given a small box of magic as a reward for selling garden seeds during summer vacation.

"There was the regular simple magician's paraphernalia inside. But best of all was the egg cup trick," explains the now much-revered Alla, billed for the grandstand show July 1 during Sidney Days at the Sandown Race Track.

Then, a whispered "hocus pocus" and a little black ball disappeared from the depths of an egg cup into the onlooker's pocket and magic was achieved.

Now Alla's magic is designed to stupidy thousands.

"It's gospel truth," according to LaCoste, that magic exists and he refers to the upcoming magician's conference at The Empress next week as proof.

More than 200 magicians the world-over will gather at the hotel to discuss Pacific Coast Magicians' Association techniques for a better public image of magic.

Anything old and anything new in magic are also scheduled for discussion by hocus-pocus artists, who range, between those who performed for fun, and those who conduct tricks for profit.

"I'm in between," he says.

"Everything you hear these days is magic. Hairspray is magic. Magic has been taken over by advertisers.

"Magicians, on the other hand, don't perform magic with the intention of making fools of the audience. We do it to amuse and entertain. There's nothing mystical about it, though some magicians would disagree."

Alla — who has appeared during Sidney Days in former years and filled the grandstand by predicting a headline on the front page of a local newspaper — refers briefly to a card trick, "big enough to do before the largest of audiences. And if you don't believe in magic after seeing that, something's wrong."

Alla is only one of many entertainers billed during a gala slate of activities during the three-day Sidney Days, Saturday, Sunday and Monday.

Events — all sponsored to finance the construction of a Lacrosse Box on Resthaven — include:

—Saturday; noon — opening of the Beer Gardens with entertainment provided by Miss Toni Sinclair, Johnny Haydn, Eric and Bob McQuillan, of Wig and Dickie Show fame; 7:30 p.m. — Miss Saanich Peninsula Pageant, Sanscha Hall; 9:30 p.m. — giant outdoor dance with bands, Woodshed and Hush, at the Race Track.

—Sunday: midway all day; afternoon — Western square dancing; 8 p.m. — Country and Western Show featuring Ferlin Husky (Wings of a Snow White Dove), and Grand Slam at the race track.

—Monday: 8 a.m. — Lions Pancake Breakfast, Beacon Plaza Shopping Mall; 9 to 10:30 a.m. — parade marshalling at Fifth and Malaview streets; 11 a.m. — Sidney Days Parade starts down Malaview to Third, to Beacon, along Resthaven, Ardwell and to Sandown Race Track; noon — Seafood Fiesta at race track; 1 p.m. — opening ceremonies and presenations; 1:30 p.m. — variety show, including the Wig and Dickie Show, Totem Tones Barber Shop Quartet, Grand Slam, Alla, Steve Irvings and Rae Burns Dancers; 8 p.m. — Teen Dance at Beacon Plaza Mall; and beer garden during afternoon and evening.

Looper Foe To Be Tested

A Victoria research entomologist says British Columbia's deadliest forest defoliator — the hemlock looper — may be controlled biologically if tests this summer prove successful.

Dr. Roy Shepherd of the Pacific Forest Research Centre said the tests will be carried out 20 miles south of Revelstoke where a new infestation of the looper has been reported.

The range of control measures will include use of viruses, fungi, bacteria and hormones as well as a few standard chemicals. The new biological materials are harmless to animals and other organisms.

Shepherd said the materials have been laboratory-tested and found safe.

In the past 25 years there have been numerous outbreaks of the looper. In one outbreak on Vancouver Island more than 50,000 acres of high-quality timber was destroyed.

95% of Tax Returns Now Processed

OTTAWA (CP) — Almost 95 per cent of individual income tax returns filed have been processed, the revenue department reported today.

Of those processed, 78 per cent resulted in refunds averaging $191.60 each.

The number of returns filed by last Thursday was 10.75 million compared with 10.16 million last year. The total processed was 10.18 million while a year ago only 7.5 million had been processed, or 74 per cent of the 1973 total.

Refunds paid were $1.519 billion. A year ago $927.9 million had been paid in refunds averaging $153.90 and 80 per cent of those filing received refunds.

Inflation accounts for part of the higher average refund and new tax tables for payroll deductions is another part of the reason. A third factor is adoption by the revenue department of a new procedure for averaging income which allows tax-payers with unusually large income in one year to have the tax burden spread over a longer period.

Soccer Man Dies

TORONTO (CP) — William Simpson, 79, former president of the Canadian Soccer Association, died in hospital Friday after a lengthy illness.

If you Don't own the place you call "home", you could be in a heap of trouble!

Every Time You Buy A Loaf Of Bread Or A Quart Of Milk, A Pair Of Shoes, or any other necessity of life, you feel the impact of inflation.

What About The Biggest Necessity Of Life?

The cost of keeping a decent roof over your head. The necessity that takes the biggest part of your income. The one that's probably going to hurt more than all the others combined as inflation accelerates. How much more is "home" going to cost you next year? In two years? In five? Think about it.

The Time To Protect Yourself Is Now.

If you don't own the place you call home, you're at the mercy of inflation. The cost of renting has to at least keep pace with the cost of living. So every day you rent, you're unprotected. The smart thing is to make a move to protect yourself. Immediately.

When You Own, You're In Control.

The way to insure that the cost of keeping a decent roof over your head doesn't get completely out of control is to become an owner. This way you assure yourself that the mortgage payments you make each month will remain the same for the term of the mortgage. No ups, no increases. In short, when you own, you're in control.

Once You've Decided To Buy, Buy Smart.

If there is any one rule to follow when buying real estate, it is to always look for these three things — location, location and location!

And don't let high interest stop you. 1% higher interest on a $25,000 Loan costs only $208.00 a year. The value of our self-owned apartments will increase ten times that each year.

CHICAGO (AP) — An active demand that was stimulated by inclement weekend weather in the Middle West lifted farm commodity futures to limits on the Board of Trade Monday.

Wheat and soybean futures rose 20 cents a bushel each, corn 10 cents, and oats 6 cents — all limits. Soybean meal gained $10 a ton, and oil 100 points, all limits. There was some trade in nearby options after the limit moves in soybeans, oil and meal as well as July corn, but most options reverted to the limits at the close.

Rain fell over scattered portions of the Middle West during the weekend, causing some settling of water and flooding of streams. The trade expected some soybean planting would be delayed and that some possible problems might arise with newly seeded corn.

At the close, soybeans remained locked at 20 cents higher, July 5.88; Chicago wheat 20 higher, July 4.77; Gulf hard red wheat up 20 cents, July 4.95; corn 10 higher, July 3.04¼ and oats up 6 cents, July 1.49¾.

Coal Gas Research Launched

LONDON (CP) — A $9.6 million research program seeking a commercial process for making a natural gas substitute from coal is being launched in Scotland.

The research is being undertaken by the British Gas Corp. for sponsors in the United States, where demand for natural gas is outstripping supply. Britain is producing enough natural gas for its own needs from wells under the North Sea.

Similar research was started in Britain 10 years ago but was abandoned in favor of another process which achieved the same results with oil. But oil has since become scarce and expensive and coal has become the most plentiful raw material for countries with inadequate natural gas supplies.

The research will be carried out at a plant at Westfield in Fife, which has been producing gas by a process of total gasification of coal but it being closed down as Britain converts progressively to natural gas from the North Sea.

Payments Deficit Laid to Vacations

By BUD JORGENSEN

OTTAWA (CP) — Winter vacations at sunny foreign resorts were among factors contributing to a deterioration in the balance of international payments during the first quarter of the year.

Statistics Canada reported Friday that the seasonally adjusted payments deficit during the January-March period was $283 million.

The first-quarter deficit compares with a seasonally adjusted deficit of $214 million during the fourth quarter of 1973 and a quarterly average deficit last year of $106 million.

But, as usual, the merchandise trade balance showed a surplus. It was $542 million, seasonally adjusted, which was up $18 million from the previous quarter. Merchanise exports were valued at $7.568 billion.

Spending abroad by Canadians on travel increased by $100 million to $573 million.

The total of service payments was $2.259 billion.

The seasonally adjusted deficit on service payments of $900 million during the first quarter was up from $878 million during the previous quarter and it compared with a quarterly average of $754 million during 1973.

During recent years, Canada has regularly had a surplus in merchandise trade and a deficit in merchandise trade and a deficit in the non-merchandise account.

Spending by foreigners in Canada also was higher. Travel receipts, seasonally adjusted, totalled $417 million, up $51 million from the previous quarter.

The seasonally adjusted values of exports and imports were up by about nine per cent. A large part of the gain was due to higher petroleum prices.

Another factor in the gain in the over-all deficit was an increase to $96 million from $55 million in official contributions for development assistance.

There was a net in-flow in the capital account. Foreigners invested $993 million more here during the first quarter than Canadians invested abroad.

The capital account surplus of $993 million was up sharply from the $118-million surplus during the fourth quarter.

A major factor in the shift was a net drom of $819 million in holdings of foreign currencies by Canadian corporations — other than banks — and individuals.

Interest rates in Canada were generally higher during the period than those in the United States and Europe. Canadian investors may have been converting large sums in foreign holdings back into Canadian dollars to take advantage of the higher rates.

Another factor was a net gain of $275 million in foreign holdings of Canadian securities. A major share of the increase was in debt holdings and the provinces were heavy borrowers in foreign bond markets during the quarter.

European currency markets were unstable during that time and the Canadian dollar increased in value. This may be part of the reason for the increase in investments in Canada.

Working against the trend towards more investment there was a net increase of $183 million in bank holdings of foreign currencies. During the quarter, restrictions on Canadian banking operations aboard were eased.

By type of holding, there was a net inflow during the quartrer of $475 million in long-term capital and $518 million in short-term capital.

The balance of payments not adjusted for seasonal variations was a $666-million deficit. Balanced off against capital flows there was a net increase of $327 million in official monetary assets.

Small Firms Help Furniture Boom

EDMONTON (CP) — This city is fast becoming the key area in Western Canada for office furniture manufacture, and executives say the climate for the business is changing.

The major outlets are Superior Steel Desk Mfg. Ltd., formed in 1967 and the leader in this field, and Wescab Furniture Mfg. Co. Ltd., an old Edmonton firm which shifted into office furniture about six months ago. It was previously known as Western School Furniture.

Wescab has remained in the school-furniture business and also manufactures aluminum doors and windows for the housing trade.

Although both firms manufacture the same product they operate differently and approach their markets from different viewpoints.

Ed Cumiskey, general manager of Superior Steel and one of three founders, likes the Alberta economy because of its healthy business climate and says Edmonton is a better location than Calgary because of greater opportunities for subcontracting.

He says that in the past, firms in the West were forced to do everything themselves because there were no small, specialized plants like those to which central Canadian furniture manufacturers farm out much of their work. Western firms were forced to put their entire operation primarily under one roof.

But this situation is changing, with Edmonton able now to support small, specialized shops, and Wescab president Terry Sulyma says that with more farming-out his company can devote more time to longer-range developments, design and marketing.

Both major firms, which compete from the Lakehead west to Vancouver Island and north to the Arctic, are looking at the U.S. Pacific Northwest as a potential market. Despite a 17-per-cent import duty on office furniture, the Seattle-Portland and California markets look attractive for the future.

Superior does most of its shipping by truck, employing some 210 persons throughout its various firms. Wesc

Once Dog Food, Fertilizer Caplin Tasty 'Pubsnacks'

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. CP) — Ray Bursey has been trying for years to promote caplin as a high-class food for humans and now he is close to success.

The smelt-like fish, which roll in millions upon Newfoundland beaches during late June, were regarded for centuries as free fertilizer, dog food and cheap bait.

Bursey's ort Amerst Sea Foods Ltd. plant at Quidi Vidi, a tiny fishing village on the eastern outskirts of St. John's, began turning out small packages of caplin snacks soon after Christmas.

"We haven't been able to process enough to keep up with the market," Bursey said in an interview.

None of the 125,000 two-ounce packages produced made it to store shelves. They were sold for between 10 and 12 cents each as "pubsnacks" to customers of bars and taverns from Labrador to Halifax.

Bursey plans to enlarge his caplin operation with the help of a $124,000 grant from the federal Department of Regional Economic Expansion (DREE). He says the number of jobs in the plant's caplin division likely will increase to about 50 from 10 by next winter.

While the ready-to-eat snacks probably would sell quickly in the United States and Canada, Bursey is looking to France for the best market.

He believes French drinking habits will help the sale of the tidbits, which consist of caplin fillets prepared with salt, smoke and certain spices — a modern, secret adaption of a centuries-old Newfoundland recipe.

Bursey's firm tried for more than 20 years to interest federal and provincial governments in developing caplin as an export food item.

About 15 years ago the company received enough government aid to produce almost 200,000 tins of caplin. They sold immediately but the massive costs of hand-processing forced the company to abandon the enterprise.

Apparently encouraged by recent federal studies of the potential of caplin, the current provincial government provided Bursey with a West German machine that guts, debones and fillets the fish.

The traditional Newfoundland way of preserving caplin for nunman consumption is to smoke or sun-dry with a light application of salt, leaving bones, head and guts intact. Salted caplin generally are roasted for eating while smoked ones may be fried or broiled.

Caplin, named originally by Portuguese fishermen of the early 16th century, come to Newfoundland beaches about the middle of June to begin laying their eggs. The males, between seven and nine inches long, develop ridges along each side during the spawning season. The females are smaller.

The eggs are laid in the sand and fertilized as the caplin roll in with the tide to touch land. Many do not escape back to deep water.

Many coastal residents, including those in St. John's, fill their freezers with the fish during the spawning season, known in Newfoundland as "the caplin scull."

With the advent of commercial fertilizers and the decline of family vegetable gardens in recent decades, few are used nowadays to feed the soil.

Bursey uses only male caplin for processed snacks, freezing and selling the spawn-filled females to Japanese buyers.

The female caplin are cooked and canned in Japan, with some occasionally turning up in mainland Canadian supermarkets.

"Caplin should be really fully developed now," Bursey said.

"No doubt it will be a multi-million-dollar enterprise in five or six years — if started now."

He said there are good indications the provincial government is becoming more aware of the possibilities, especially with the decline of some other species.

Boeing

The Boeing Commercial Airplane Co. says Air Canada has ordered six additional advanced 727 Trijets.

The planes will cost more than $50 million.

The new order will be turned over to the Carrier during the first half of 1975. Air Canada placed its first 727 order late last year, buying five Trijets. Total 727 sales now stand at 1,157, Boeing officials said.

W. Broadcasting

F. A. Griffiths, president of Westers Broadcasting Company Ltd., reported that the company's net income for the 12 months ended March 31 was $2.4 million or 63 cents a share, fully diluted.

This compares with $2.2 million, or 58 cents a share, fully diluted, for the same period a year ago.

The dilution is because of the conversion of preferred shares to common shares on a three-for-one basis bringing total common shares issued to 3.5 million.

Winnebago

Winnebago Industries Inc. had a sharp drop in sales and earnings during the first quarter to May 25 in comparison with last year. Earnings were $255,775, or one cent a share, down from $4 million or 16 cents a share for the first quarter a year ago. Sales fell to $26.7 million from $62.6 million.

Japanese Firm In Regina

REGINA (CP) — A pump-manufacturing plant jointly owned by a Japanese firm, the Saskatchewan government and a Regina business was officially opened today with a prediction that more Japanese investment in the province will follow.

Industry Minister Kim Thorson said the opening marks the first example of Japanese investment in Saskatchewan and expressed hope that it would mean more mutually-beneficial relationships with Japanese business.

The new joint venture, which calls for total investment of $1.3 million, will be operated by Ebadisco Manufacturing Canada Ltd., a Regina company formed in 1972.

Ebara manufacturing of Japan has acquired a 10-per-cent interest in Ebadisco as part of the agreement on the joint venture, while the Saskatchewan Economic Development Corp. has aquired a 45-per-cent share.

The remaining 45 per cent will be held by the Swinnerton group of Regina, headed by Donald Swinnerton, president of Roantree Plumbing and Heating Ltd.

Ebadisco will initially buy various types of pumps from Ebara and medify and assemble them at the Regina plant for North American distribution. Sales this year are expected to reach $11 million.

STRONG REBOUND SEEN FOR CANADIAN ECONOMY

MONTREAL (CP) — A Bank of Montreal economist forecasts economic strength for the remainder of 1974 despite a continuing rising price spiral and a recoiling economy in the U.S.

Canadian economic activity, strong in the first quarter of this year, should ease off in mid-year and rebound in the final quarter, said J. D. Parish, the bank's senior assistant economic adviser.

"Over-all, the real gain should be about five per cent, down substantially from last but a pretty good year none the less," he told members of the Textile Trade Association.

Figures for the first five months of 1974 indicate that prices will rise by about 10 per cent this year, he said.

However, he said many commodity prices appear to be sagging and should be coming back under "somewhat better" control by the end of the year.

"I hasten to add that no sharp break in prices is expected, and that we have yet to feel at the retail level the full impact of last year's sharp increases in commodity, industrial and energy prices," he said.

Reviewing several economic sectors, Paris made the following projections:

—The hectic pace of housebuilding activity will slow as the year proceeds, with signs that there may be less mortgage money in coming months;

—The growth of exports will probably fall off this summer.

Export volume is not expected to increase however and "now that commodity prices are weakening, Canada's balance in trade in goods and services may deteriorate," he said.

Consumer spending, representing about 60 per cent of total economic activity, should remain strong.

In the financial sector, he said loan demand has equalled or exceeded deposit growth in each of the past six quarters, with the result that banks are getting tighter.

High interest rates are a world-wide phenomenon, he said, and Canadian rates are on the low side.

$1 Daily 'Fill-Up' Runs Electric Vans

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — The three new vans in Atlantic City Electric Co.'s fleet cost twice as much as usual but the utility hopes to make up the difference in fuel economy.

The $9,000 vans run on electricity, not gas, and a company spokesman says it cost only $1 to "fill up" a vehicle's batteries for a day's driving.

The vans are not suited for long distances, since their range is only 50 miles if driven at 20 miles an hour, or less if driven faster. It takes eight hours to recharge a van's two 1½-volt batteries.

But that is no problem for A.C.F., which simply plugs the vehicles into a wall socket at night when they are idle.

"There are more than 500 cars and trucks in the company's fleet and more than half are limited mileage vehicles that are primarily used for short trips or in-town driving," said Herb Adams, manager for general services.

John D. Feehan, company president, described the experimental vans as "the solution to pollution," since their engines are quiet and emit no fumes.

The utility plans to use two vans within Atlantic City and the third to ferry employees to Pleasantville, five miles away.

The vans are among 107 made for the Electric Vehicle Council, a group of utilities seeking to encourage the development of electric transportation.

A.C.E. said it expects few mechanical problems.

"You rebuild a motor three times before you get rid of a gas-powered van," said Fred Miller, an A.C.E. mechanic. "The electric jobs can go almost indefinitely without major mechanical problems.

"We're not going to show them any favoritism and keep them out of the rain or use them sparingly. We bought them to see how they stand up against a combustion engine and they're going to be used like another vehicle."

The U.S. Federal Power Commission has estimated that by 1990, there will be 38 million electric vehicles on the road.

Fifty-six other United States utilities are testing the vans and the U.S. post office is considering them to deliver mail.

East Germany, Poland Seize the Initiative

At the halfway point in the World Cup, West German fans are seriously worried about captain Franz Beckenbauer and his men. They started the tournament as favorites for the trophy, but now are struggling.

The initiative has been seized by two teams from Eastern Europe—Poland, 100 per cent improved after three games, and East Germany, which upset its highly-rated West German neighbors 1-0.

His once-brilliant team has begun to slow down. Wolfgang Overath, Gerd Mueller, Bertie Vogts, Juergen Grabowski, all stars of the 1970 World Cup in Mexico, have failed to make the impact for which German fans had hoped.

West Germany has found its way into the second round, but not very convincingly. Saturday's defeat by East Germany in Hamburg, in the first full international game between the two countries, was a severe blow to national prestige—and to Schoen.

The team manager, now 58, came from East Germany and formerly starred for SC Dresden. He made it plain he wanted above all to win this one.

Poland, Yugoslavia, The Netherlands and Sweden have all looked more penetrating in attack than Schoen's team. These four go into the second round along with the two Germanys, Brazil and Argentina.

The Italian team was attacked by more than 500 angry Italian fans when it left the Neckar stadium after its 2-1 defeat by Poland Sunday that eliminated it from the tournament. The fans attacked several players as they tried to board the team bus, which they surrounded and pelted with missiles.

In theory, West Germany deserves to be the favorite. The West Germans are playing in front of their own supporters. They have seven players from Bayern Munich, reigning European club champions, who are accustomed to playing together.

Beckenbauer, at 28, is still probably the best captain in the World Cup. He commands his forces from the back line and seems to see two moves ahead, like a good chess player.

But for all Beckenbauer's inspiring leadership, West Germany simply isn't clicking as it used to.

Overath, 30, has played his heart out in midfield these last 10 days but has not penetrated the holes in the packaged defences, which have been a feature of the tournament.

Grabowski, 30, no longer has the speed that demoralized the tiring English team when he went on as substitute in the boiling heat of Leone, Mexico, in 1970.

Mueller, 28, top scorer in the 1970 tournament with 10 goals, has managed only one in three matches so far.

"We can no longer play open attacking football," Schoen said.

But his comments came after The Netherlands had given an all-out attacking display to crush Bulgaria 4-1 and Sweden, attacking on the wings in the old-fashioned style, had crushed Uruguay 3-0.

Roberto Porta resigned as Uruguay's manager after the defeat by Sweden, saying: "I want to apologize for the sad and disgraceful role the Uruguayan team has played in this Cup."

Despite a 1-1 tie with Yugoslavia, Scotland was eliminated from World Cup play Saturday as a result of Brazil's 3-0 win over Zaire.

In other play Saturday, Chile played to a scoreless draw against Australia and did not reach the second round.

Defeat stared the Scots in the face 10 minutes from the end when Stanislav Karasi, a late substitute for Dusan Bajevic, headed Yogoslavia into the lead.

The Scots came back to tie the score with two minutes to play on a goal by Joe Jordan, but they never really looked like they might get the victory they needed.

Stars Miss Meet

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Steve Williams, who equalled the world record for the 100-metre dash, and Rick Wohlhuter, who ran the 800 in 1:43.9, just two-tenths of a second off the world mark, are looking forward to the coming United States-Soviet Union dual track meet, but there are a galaxy of other stars of the National Amateur Athletic Union (AAU) competition Friday and Saturday who won't be able to keep the date.

Jim Bolding, Dwight Stones, John Powell and Al Feuerbach took off for Europe after AAU victories. They're members of the Pacific Coast Club which opted for a series of European meets rather than the U.S.-U.S.S.R. meet in Durham, N.C., July 5-6.

Donald Quarrie, who won the 200 in 20.5, would like to prove he's the world's top sprinter by competing against the Russians, but he's from Jamaica. Jim Gilkes, Charleton Ehizuelen and Rod Dixon aren't Americans, either. Gilkes, the No. 2 man in the 200 and the NCAA 220 king from Fiske, is from Guyana. Ehizuelen, the second-place finisher in the triple jump, is from Nigeria, and Dixon, winner of the 1,500, is from New Zealand.

Frank Shorter, the Olympic marathon champ who won the 10,000 metres in 28:16.0 and was second in the 5,000, plans to enter law school in England July 1.

PICTURESQUE PERFORMANCES were common on the weekend as nearly 1,000 of the best age-class athletes in B.C., Alberta and Washington competed in the annual Y-Times track and field meet in perfect weather at Centennial Stadium. Macs Convert a Late Lead Into Junior Boxla Defeat

Victoria McDonalds fumbled an 8-5 advantage and went on to drop a 13-9 decision to Richmond Roadrunners in a Pacific Junior "A" Lacrosse League game Sunday at Esquimalt Sports Centre.

Victoria led 4-3 after the first period, 7-5 after the second and scored the opening goal of the third frame.

Then Roadrunners exploded.

The victory moved Richmond into a second-place tie with Victoria, 10 points behind leading Burnaby Cablevision, which dropped visiting Coquitlam J-Hawks 14-5 in another Sunday game.

Richmond also beat Surrey Salmonbellies 10-9 on Saturday.

"It was inexperience that cost us those last few goals. It wasn't a bad game at all," said Victoria general manager Bob Reid.

Ron Pinder and Tom Penway led Roadrunners with three goals each while double tallies were counted by Mike Soldon, Ray Durante and Ricco Bellesci. The single goal was scored by Cliff Tomko.

Kevin Alexander paced Victoria with three goals, Norm Baker and Mike Walsh each scored twice and singles were fired by Jeevan Dillon and Leigh Hegan.

Denis McLean made 38 saves in the Victoria net before being replaced at 12:07 of the third period by Steve Stunden, who blocked five shots the rest of the way.

Richmond's John Lewis made 36 saves.

Only four minor penalties were handed out to each club in the relatively clean contest which was watched by the largest crowd of the season approximately 1,125 fans.

Saanich Wins In Lacrosse

Saanich nipped Victortia 12-10 Sunday in a Vancouver Island Intermediate "B" Lacrosse League game at Memorial Arena.

Bill Griffin set the pace for Saanich with two goals and three assists while Dwayne Ferguson led Victoria with two goals and five assists. Billy Kay also scored twice for Victoria.

BASKETBALL ELIGIBILITY TIGHTENED

MONTREAL (CP) Stricter rules governing eligibility of players competing in Canadian intercollegiate basketball were adopted at the Canadian Intercollegiate Athletic Union's annual meeting which ended Friday.

Under the new regulations, a CIAU-member basketball team will be permitted to dress 12 players, but only three of them can be non-Canadians. A non-Canadian will be classified as a player that has received basketball training or has played a basketball game outside of Canada for a non-Canadian team.

Some teams in the country still have more than three non-Canadians on their rosters and they will be permitted to play. However, once those students graduate or leave the institution, no new imports can be added to that team's roster unless the number of non-Canadians falls under the maximum limit.

Keys Content With Drills

Times News Services

Head coach Eagle Keys of British Columbia Lions cancelled the Canadian Football League club's next scrimmage after Sunday's workout at Penticton.

Keys said the coaching staff at the 1974 training camp "found out what he wanted to know" and cancelled a scrimmage scheduled for Tuesday. The next one will be held Thursday.

"We got more out of this scrimmage than we did the first one last Thursday," said Keys, coaching only rookies at this year's camp because of a strike by the CFL Players Association.

He said some of the players who stood out were safety Grady Cavness, defensive end Lorne Watters and quarterback Bob Wattingy.

The Grey Cup champion Ottawa Rough Riders and the CFL All-Stars both held two workourt Saturday in preparation for Wednesday's game, which will be played despite the "retirement" status of the league's veteran players.

The CFL's 278 veterans handed in their resignations June 15 to back demands for higher payment for exhibition games, post-season playoffs and the Grey Cup final as well as improved pensions and training camp allowances.

Talks between the Players Association and league representatives were held last week in Winnipeg and were expected to resume today or Tuesday in Ottawa.

However, the all-star game was scheduled to go on as planned. Proceeds from the game go into the players' pension fund.

The all-stars will be coached by Blacky Johnson, former Toronto Argonaut assistant coach, who is substituting for Edmonton's Ray Jauch. Jauch, as a member of management, said he was unable to take the coaching job due to the "retirement" situation.

Advance sales for the game have been feeble, with only 7,000 tickets sold thus far. That mans Lansdowne Park will have about 20,000 empty seats unless there is a sudden ticket rush before game time.

In Bloomington, Minn., meanwhile, quarterback Fran Tarkenton has spurned lavish offers from the new World Football League and signed a multi-year contract with the National Football League's Minnesota Vikings.

Tarkenton said after signing again with the Vikings that he had deciced "months ago that I wasn't going with the new league no matter how good their offer was."

WCHL Meeting Ends But Problem Remains

By ERNIE FEDORUK
Times Staff

Western Canada Hockey League executives were to scatter for home today after a busy, five-day annual general meeting cleared up most of their business but failed to put any concrete on one of their most thorniest issues.

Unresolved was the testy problem of losing under-aged players to National Hockey League and World Association teams.

As a committee was steered away to solve the problem, the WCHL inopped up at the weekend.

League managers used up most of Sunday's daylight to work out a 1974-75 schedule, a drawn-out assignment that was to be completed today.

They also retained Ed Chynoweth, the straight-from-the-shoulder speaker from Saskatoon, as their president. The appointment, a paid position, is for two more years.

Highlighting the scheduling marathon was the decision to hold the league's annual all-star game on Jan. 14. The prestiegous game had been awarded to Victoria on Friday. The all-star dinner will be held on Jan. 13, a Monday.

By Sunday evening, the weary officials had worked out the first three months of the schedule. League play tentatively starts Oct. 3 and is due to wind up about March 26.

ED CHYNOWETH
. . . another term

Victoria Cougars will open Oct. 4 at New Westminster and play their first home game Oct. 5 against Edmonton Oil Kings.

The WCHL also decided to control pre-season activities by ruling teams must play a minimum of six exhibitions and a maximum of 10.

The matter of a new agreement with the pros, including the drafting issue, fell into the laps of a five-man committee composed of Chynoweth, Scotty Munro of Calgary Centennials, Ernie McLean of New Westminster Bruins, Bill Burton of Lethbridge Broncos and Del Wilson of Regina Pats.

Priority in the new agreement will be given to establishing terms for the drafting of "under-age" or "exceptional" juniors. The club operators, to a man, felt the two major pro leagues flaunted the draft agreement by claiming 28 "exceptional" 18-year-olds earlier this month.

"We're going to fight to see that the pros take none," said Chynoweth. "If the pros insist on claiming an exceptional player, then we're going to demand a minimum of $100,000 for the player, and that no club will be allowed to lose more than one exceptional player."

FIRST LOSS OF SEASON FOR WILKIN

Barry Wilkin came a-crashing, but only briefly, and the home-run hitters forced Side Krumpe to split a pair of decisions in Stuffy McGinnis Men's Softball League action Sunday.

Sooke Merchants tagged the previously-unbeaten Wilkin with his first loss of the year by clipping Seaboard Construction 3-0 behind Glen Bullen's three-hit pitching.

But Wilkin bounced back for his ninth victory of the year, in the second half of the doubleheader at Sooke, blanking the Merchants 2-0.

Krumpe also split. He went the distance for his eighth win in hurling Port Angeles to a 3-2 decision over Mike's Sports Shop but lost his fourth, in relief, as the Victoria squad rebounded for a 2-1 win at Heywood.

Mike's collected both of their runs on homers, by Ron Grant and Wayne Bobroske. The latter tagged Krumpe for the winning clout with one out in the bottom of the seventh.

Baseball Visitors Split

Glen Wallis came up with a pair of crucial hits Sunday to help Farmer Construction of the Victoria Senior Amateur Baseball League to a 7-6 victory over Old-Stylers of the Vancouver Metro League in one of two interlocking games at Lambrick Park.

Earlier in the afternoon, Old-Stylers handed Al's Home Service an 8-6 defeat.

Wallis doubled in both runs in the fourth inning, then tagged a single to bring another two runners across the plate early in the sixth. Barry Moen then sacrificed in what turned out to be the winning run.

Pinch-hitter Les Babuin gave Old-Stylers their win by snapping a 6-6 deadlock in the seventh inning with a two-run double that bounced off the centre-field fence.

Victoria Win Not Enough

VANCOUVER — Victoria defeated Vancouver 3-2 Saturday at Adanac Park, but it wasn't enough to pull out the series in the soccer oldtimers' annual inter-city series. Vancouver wone the home-and-home series on the strength of a 3-0 win in Victoria two weeks ago. Ian Harris scored twice and Alf Heggan added another to give Victoria a 3-0 half-time lead but second-half goals by Bill Stewart and Joe Bell salvaged the series for the mainlanders.

★

Tag-Team Crown Retained

The Brute and Mr. X retained their Canadian tag-team title in a battle against Wayne Bridges and Dan Kroffet when all four grapplers were disqualified for fighting outside the ring in the feature bout of a professional wrestling card Sunday night at Memorial Arena. In other bouts, Leo Madril and Buck Ramstead fought to a draw, Killer Kirk topped Jose Azteca, Sonny Boy Hayes downed Cowboy Lang and the Haiti Kid and Lang tumbled Hayes and Tokyo Joe.

★

Boxla Teams Break Even

Greater Victoria squads split a pair of lop-sided B.C. Junior "B" Lacrosse League games played on home floors Sunday. Saanich E. J. Hunter trampled Burnaby Cablevision 22-6 at Pearkes Arena and Cloverdale romped to a 19-5 decision over Esquimalt Teamsters at Esquimalt Sports Centre.

Steve Bowach led Saanich with five goals and one assist while other multiple scorers among his clubmates were Kerry Lewis (3), Mike Hardy (2), Steve Hepburn (2) and Rick Sylvester (2). Alan Hughes pumped in four goals to spark Cloverdale and Steve Buckley topped Esquimalt with three goals.

A Routine Shot Does It And Everyone's Excited

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — It was a routine shot for a par five, but Jim Colbert couldn't have been more excited with a hole in one.

A four-man, sudden-death playoff Sunday had been narrowed to Colbert and Ray Floyd. And when Floyd's bold bid for a birdie turned into a bogey instead, that routine par shot was enough to give Colbert the title in the American Golf Classic, the fourth victory of his career, and $34,000.

Floyd and the other two playoff losers, Forrest Fezler and veteran Gay Brewer, each got $13,147.

"I'm real excited," Colbert said. "I've won before, but this is my first on national televison. It's my first on a really great golf course. It's just great."

He said it was an all-or-nothing victory bid: if he didn't finish on top "I didn't care if I was second or 95th."

"I wanted it all and I was willing to take some chances to get it."

Floyd was willing to take chances too. When Fezler and Brewer were bounced by bogeys on the first playoff hole, Floyd said he "was playing for birdie" on the second.

But his wind-blown third shot caught the bank of a pond guarding the green and set up the bogey that let Colbert's par five stand up.

Colbert, 33, had to make a scrambling par on the last hole of regulation play, chipping over a bunker to within about 18 inches of the hole, to tie Floyd, Fezler and Brewer at 281 and join the playoff. That's one-over-par on the unyielding, 7,180-yard course.

George Knudson of Toronto had a 79 Sunday for a four-round total of 293. He earned $336. Ben Kern of London, Ont., had 77 for a 296 total, good for $298.

The victory lifted Colbert's season's earnings to $73,000.

Colbert and Floyd matched par 70 in the last round, Brewer had a 71 and Fezler, who missed birdie putts on the last three holes that would have secured his first pro victory, had a 73.

Birdies in Rain Bring Haynie Title

SUTTON, Mass. (AP) — Steady Sandra Haynie made a string of birdies in the rain Sunday to win her second Ladies Professional Golf Association championship.

The 31-year-old Texan, who nursed a one-stroke lead at the outset of the final round, pulled away with birdies on three of the first four holes and finished with a par 73 at Pleasant Valley Country Club, bringing her 72-hold score to 288, four under par.

She won by two strokes over JoAnne Carner. Mrs. Carner started the final round three strokes off the pace. However, the former five-time U.S. amateur champion was unable to do better than a 72, winding up at 290.

Sandra Palmer, who set a course record of 66 in the second round, had trailed by only one stroke after 54 holes but ran into putting trouble and took a closing 75 for third place with a 291 total.

Bob Panasiuk Accentuates The Positive

Times News Services

HUDSON HEIGHTS, Que.— Thanks to a new "positive attitude," Windsor's Bob Panasiuk has a $3,000 cheque in his pocket and an invitation to the Canadian Open golf tournament.

The exemption to the Open and the cheque were Panasiuk's rewards for defeating veteran Moe Norman in a sudden-death playoff and claiming victory in the Quebec Open Sunday.

The Ontario pros wound up in a deadlock after the regulation 54 holes with two-under-par 214 totals. Panasiuk, the Canadian Professional Golfers' Association champion for the past two years, won the playoff when he carded a par four on the third extra hole while Norman had to settle for a bogey five.

John Morgan of Victoria wound up in a three-way tie for the next spot. Morgan carded a final-round 74 to finish with his one-over-par 217. His share of the $20,000 purse — $673 — boosted his winnings from the first two tournaments of the Canadian tour to $1,648.

Uplands Youngster No. 1 on Squad

Scores compiled in the 36-hole city junior test along with two trial rounds at the weekend determined selection with players having the option of throwing out their poorest round.

MacLeod, 18-year-old son of professional Ron MacLeod of Jasper Park, scored a one-over-par 73 Sunday at Gorge Vale. Rutledge, a 14-year-old Cedar Hill and Uplands member, locked up his spot with a 75 Saturday at Uplands and didn't turn in a card Sunday.

MacLeod shared Sunday's scoring honors with clubmate Lee Haskell while Don Gowan of Uplands and Dave Rands of Cedar Hill led the way Saturday with four-over 74s.

Brad MacLeod (U)	142-(83)-73—215

NEW YORK (AP) — New York Yankees said Saturday they are sending pitcher Mel Stottlemyre to a noted Los Angeles specialist, Dr. Robert Kerlan, to have his ailing right shoulder examined.

Dale Thriving on Competition

VANCOUVER — A demanding week of golf doesn't seem to have affected Dale Shaw.

The newly-crowned Victoria champion fired a two-over par 76 at Vancouver Golf Club Sunday to solidify her contending position for a berth on the British Columbia women's interprovincial golf team.

Miss Shaw led the field despite playing her ninth competitive round of golf in nine days. The 76, along with an 80 recorded Saturday at Quilchena, gave Miss Shaw a 72-hole total of 311 after four trial rounds.

Miss Shaw's four-round total is bettered only by defending provincial champion Marilyn Palmer of Marine Drive, who scored rounds of 76 and 77 at the weekend for a 304 total and a "plus factor" of eight.

The four trial rounds, along with the two medal rounds in the provincial women's tournament, will be used to determine selection with golfers having the option of throwing out their two poorest scores.

The all-important plus factor is determined by subtracting the women's course rating from the score.

Gail Moore of Vancouver Club and Capilano's Sheila Bentley, who did not play in the two trial rounds at Victoria the previous weekend, bounced into contention with their scores in the mainland trials.

But their plus factors — eight and 13 — can't be compared equitably with women who have played in all four rounds.

Two Victoria golfers — Joan Lawson of Uplands and Oak Bay's Margaret Todd — took a virtual stranglehold on two of the four berths on the senior team.

Mrs. Todd led the way Saturday with an 80 while Mrs. Lawson carded an 85. Both scored 83s Sunday.

Marilyn Palmer (MD)	151-76-77—304 (8)

Canadian Cagers Take Two More

HALIFAX (CP) — Canada's national basketball teams swept two more games Saturday in their exhibition series against a team from China and a regional all-star squad.

The national men's team pulled out the stops in the last quarter to defeat the Chinese men's squad 89-66. The Canadian women's national team had an easier time with a 76-32 decision over a Maritime all-star team.

PORT ALBERNI — A Nanaimo golfer won low gross honors and a Port Alberni swinger walked off with the low net torphy but a 17-handicapper from Victoria's Gorge Vale club wound up the biggest winner in the 22nd annual West Coast Open.

Rick and Rico Prove Injuries No Handicap

By The Associated Press

Rico Petrocelli, hobbled by a pulled hamstring muscle that has knocked him off third base and left him as Boston Red Sox' designated hitter, belted a pair of solo home runs Sunday.

And Rick Wise, recovering from a broken finger, pitched five solid innings in his first start in a month. The Rick-and Rico combination, plus some healthy hitting, powered Boston to an 8-0 rout of Cleveland Indians and enabled the Red Sox to widen their American League East lead to 3½ games over Detroit Tigers.

In Sunday's other games, New York Yankees beat the Tigers 4-1, Milwaukee Brewers walloped Baltimore Orioles 9-4, Kansas City Royals defeated Oakland A's 4-1, California Angels crushed Texas Rangers 10-2 and in a doubleheader, Chicago Cubs edged Minnesota White Sox 2-1 before the Twins tripped the White Sox 4-3.

In Saturday's games, Detroit beat New York 4-1, Chicago defeated Minnesota 3-1, Cleveland beat Boston 11-8 and 3-0, Baltimore defeated Milwaukee 7-2, Oakland edged Kansas City 3-2 and California beat Texas 7-4.

In the National League Sunday, Montreal Expos trimmed St. Louis Cardinals 4-2, Chicago Cubs rapped Pittsburgh Pirates 7-3, Houston Astros defeated San Diego Padres 8-2, Los Angeles Dodgers topped San Francisco Giants 4-3, and Cincinnati Reds beat Atlanta Braves 2-1 and 4-2. New York's game at Philadelphia was rained out.

In Saturday games, Pittsburgh beat Chicago 6-0, Philadelphia Phillies swept a doubleheader from New York Mets 5-2 and 8-5. Cincinnati topped Atlanta 3-2, San Diego defeated Houston 6-2, Los Angeles edged San Francisco 3-2 and St. Louis downed Montreal 4-3.

The Red Sox added three more runs in the third on a double by Tommy Harper, a single by Dick McAuliffe, two walks and a two-run single by Rick Miller.

Petrocelli hit his second homer in the fifth. Boston wrapped up the romp, with runs in the seventh and eighth innings.

Newly-acquired Rudy May pitched a four-hitter and Bobby Murcer doubled home the tiebreaking run during a sixth-inning downpour in the Yankees' victory. Rain forced postponement of the second game.

Lindy McDaniel, making a rare start, retired the first 12 Oakland batters he faced and wound up with a three-hit triumph over the A's.

Frank Robinson and Lee Stanton made it easy for California's Andy Hassler to gain his first major league victory. They hit two-run homers in the first inning and drove in three runs apiece in the stampede against Texas.

Stan Bahnsen pitched a four-hitter while Carlos May singled home one run and scored the other on a wild pitch in Chicago's first-game victory.

In the nightcap, the Twins' Danny Thompson, tripled in the seventh and scored on Steve Brye's tie-breaking single. Bob Darwin had hit a three-run homer to pull Minnesota into a 3-3 tie in the sixth.

Tony Perez belted a 12th-inning Joe Niekro pitch into the centre field seats for a 2-1 Cincinnati victory and a sweep of the doubleheader against Atlanta.

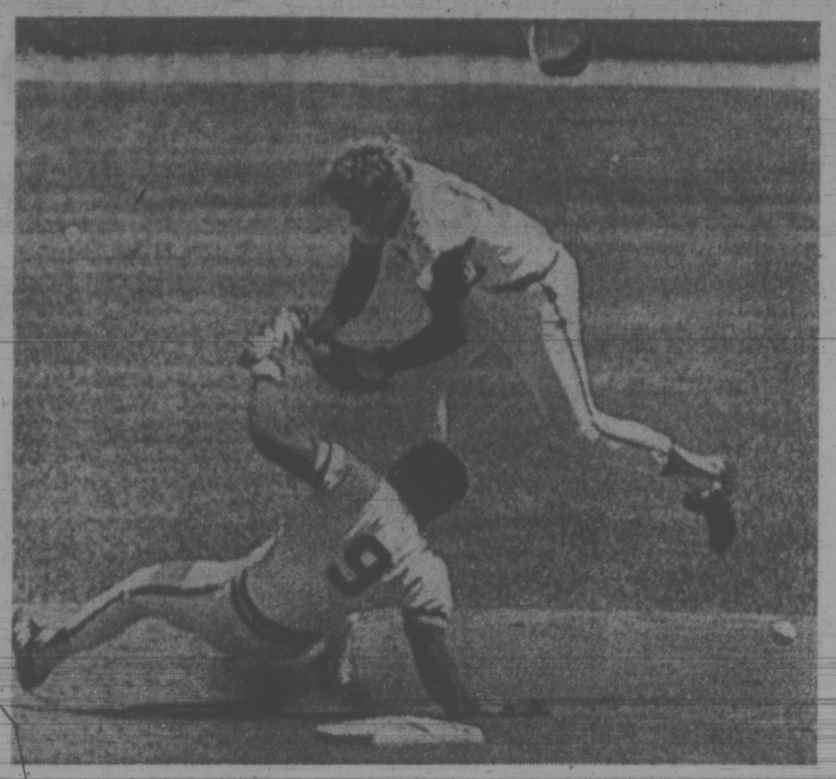
In the opener, Roger Nelson won his first game since May 26 with Joe Morgan contributing three hits.

The sweep returned the Reds to second place in the National League's West Division, 6½ games behind Los Angeles Dodgers.

Sidney Boy Wins Trip

Curtis Higgins, an 11-year-old from Sidney, is Vancouver Island's first winner of a unique "scholarship" offer that will permit deserving youngsters a chance to Darryl Sittler's hockey school in Ontario.

Sponsored by a life insurance company, the project will allow 20 players from across Canada to attend the camp at London Aug. 10-17. Minor hockey groups cooperate by nominating a deserving player.



OVER-ANXIOUS: Milwaukee Brewers shortstop Robin Yount (airborne) and second baseman Pedro Garcia collide while chasing hot grounder off bat of Tom Davis. Milwaukee lost 9-4 to Baltimore Orioles. Yount had to leave game with undetermined injuries. (AP Wirephoto)

Taylor, Cameron Tops

Marty Taylor, "Mr. Active" on the district's tennis courts, and Brenda Cameron, a nationally-ranked 16-year-old, captured the singles championships Saturday in the windup of the Racquet Club's annual tournament.

It was an uphill struggle for Taylor against the 42-year-old Miller. Miller held a 6-5 lead in the deciding match but Taylor broke service to pull even and then won the tiebreaker 7-3.

Taylor then teamed up with Ernie Cockayne and the top-seeded pairing defeated Phil Blake and Ed Hedley 6-2, 6-3 to win the men's doubles.

But Taylor's bid for a share of a third title was foiled by top-rated Wendy Cuppage and Miller. The Cuppage-Miller partnership won the mixed championship by defeating Taylor and Jennifer Bland 6-4, 6-4.

The mixed triumph also made Mrs. Cuppage a double winner. She teamed up with Mrs. Hemeon, as top seeds, to win the women's doubles, 6-2, 6-4, over the teen-aged combination of Miss Cameron and Nina Bland.

LANDOVER, Md. (AP) — Washington Capitals, a New National Hockey League club, have purchased the contract of defenceman Doug Mohns, 41, from Atlanta Flames.

Wimbledon: Uneasy Calm

LONDON (Reuter) — The Wimbledon tennis championships, surrounded by bitter dispute the last two years, opens today in an atmisphere of uneasy calm.

For the first time since 1971 all the men players who matter are entered with Australia's John Newcombe determined to recapture the singles title and the women's entry is as strong as ever. But the championships are staged against the background of yet another tennis war.

Two years ago it was a dispute over money involving World Championship Tennis (WCT) that resulted in the top men missing Wimbledon. In 1973 the Association of Tennis Professionals (ATP) boycotted the championships when Nikki Pilic of Yugoslavia was banned for failing to represent his country in the Davis Cup.

This time it is a battle between European tennis and World Team Tennis (WTT), the North American-based inter-city league, that is causing the trouble.

The French and Italian championships both went on without WTT players, and although Wimbledon stands above the battle this year, things may be different in a few months.

Philippe Chatrier, the French Tennis Federation president, has said he will lead a European front at next month's International Lawn Tennis Federation (LTF) Congress aimed at getting the ILTF to rescind an agreement under which WTT has received recognition — provided players have been released for the major European championships and the Davis Cup.

But this year, at least, Wimbledon will be contested by all the top players and the clamor for tickets to watch the stars playing in the world's premier tournament has been intense.

The championships have been over-subscribed by nearly $312,000 and this amount will be returned to unsuccessful applicants for reserved seats.

London bookmakers have made Newcombe a 2-to-1 favorite to win the men's title for the fourth time.

Stan Smith Wins Title

NOTTINGHAM, England (AP) — Stan Smith, the 1972 Wimbledon champion from Sea Pines, S.C., defeated Alex Metreveli of Russia Saturday 6-3, 1-6, 6-3 to win the $100,000 John Player tennis tournament.

Meanwhile, in a related John Player $25,000 event at Eastbourne, American Chris Evert beat Britain's Virginia Wade in the final 7-5, 6-4, to win $4,200.

Shoplifting Fine

LONDON (AP) — American tennis player Bob Kreiss was fined $500 in a London court Saturday for shoplifting. Kreiss, 21, from Bel Air, Calif., admitted stealing a $20 short from a boutique.

WHA NOT SET FOR RUSS?

HARTFORD, Conn. (AP) — General manager Jack Kelley of the World Hockey Association New England Whalers says a WHA squad will be poorly prepared when it faces the Soviet national hockey team in September.

The Soviet team is scheduled to begin intensified practice June 25 for the eight-game series with the WHA players who will make up Team Canada. The Canadians are not scheduled to start workouts until Sept. 1, which will give them 17 days to get used to one another and develop team timing.

The series begins Sept. 17 at Quebec City and moves to Winnipeg, Vancuver and either Toronto or Montreal before shifting to Moscow. The Canadians also will play Sept. 27 in Helsinki and Sept. 28 in Sweden. They will wind up the overseas trip with a game Oct. 8 in Prague against the Czech national squad.

Kelley said it would be difficult to start workouts Sept. 1 and be prepared to meet the Soviets.

"It takes a good month of work plus some exhibition games to really come together as a team. I realize the native ability of these players, but to match Russia in regard to team play it will take more training time."

But WHA officials aren't paying much attention to Kelley. Invitations soon will be sent out to 25 players who will make up the WHA tea, but the roster won't be officially announced until Aug 1.

Ross Hopes Luck Will Improve

Motorsport Roundup

Times News Services

Victoria's Ross Surgenor will be hoping for better luck Wednesday before his hometown fans when the Western Grand National late-model stock car series moves to Western Speedway for a $6,650 150-lap event.

Surgenor, who qualified Saturday for the NASCAR Grand National West race on Coquitlam's Westwood circuit, was involved in an accident early in Sunday's 150-mile test. He was driving a 1972 Chevelle owned by Dick Midgley of Victoria.

Surgenor was able to keep going until past the halfway mark before he was forced into the pits for good. He was one of nine drivers in the field of 25 who had to drop out.

Four-time series champion Ray Elder of Caruthers, Calif., won Sunday's race by piloting a 1974 Dodge Charger from 23rd place to the head of the pack.

Elder was forced to start at the back of the field because he qualified in a backup car, a 1972 Charger, Saturday.

His crew worked throughout the night to repair the 1974 model which sustained heavy front-end damage during practice before the qualifying session Saturday.

Elder quickly moved through the field Sunday and was in second place by the 15th lap. He took over the lead from Sonny Easley of Van Nuys, Calif., who was driving a 1973 Torino, at the three-quarter mark.

Elder's margin of victory over Easley was eight seconds, finishing the 86 laps in two hours, three minutes. Third was Ron Gautsce of Truckee, Calif., in a 1971 Torino. John Anderson of Palmdale, Calif., in a 1972 Chevrolet finished fourth. Chuck Wahl of Burbank, Calif., placed fifth in a 1974 Chevrolet, while Jim McMillan of Surrey, B.C., was the top Canadian, placing sixth in a 1972 Chevelle. McMillan collapsed after the race from exhaustion.

Jim Insol of Mission Hill, Calif., who won the pole position in a 1972 Monte Carlo, and Jack McCoy of Modesto, Calif., in a 1973 Charger, who qualified for second position, both dropped out of the race Sunday with mechanical problems.

The same field will be in the running for Wednesday's race at Western Speedway. Time trials are at 7 p.m. and the racing starts at 8.

Squeaker Won By 'Caps'

Defending North American Soccer League champion Philadelphia Atoms completed a pointless two-game swing of the league's western division Sunday, losing to Vancouver Whitecaps on a 1-0 tie-break decision before 8,816 fans at Empire Stadium.

The victory, after a scoreless 90 minutes of play, was worth four points to Vancouver under the NASL's scoring system. Philadelphia, beaten 2-0 in Seattle Saturday night, got nothing from either game.

Once again, Vancouver dominated play territorially and actually got the ball in the Philadelphia net twice — both times with George McLean the marksman. However both shots were whistled back on offside calls.

The Vancouver hero in the tie-breaking penalty-kick system was goalie Sam Nusum, who stopped two penalty kicks by Bill Straub and Derek Trevis. Four of Vancouver's five penalties found the target, with Les Wilson hitting the goalpost on the other one.

In Saturday's other games, Boston Minutemen downed Washington Diplomats 2-1, Dallas Tornado beat Denver Dynamos 3-2 and San Jose edged New York 3-2.

UNDER-THE-TABLE RECRUITING CHARGED

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — Moses Malone, the most sought-after schoolboy basketball player in the United States this year, has told National Collegiate Athletic Association investigators one college coach offered him $1,000 under the table to sign, the Times-Dispatch said Saturday.

The newspaper says two NCAA investigators have started an inquiry into the recruiting tactics used by hundreds of colleges that sought the 6-foot-11 Petersburg, Va., high school star.

NCAA investigators arrived in Petersburg Friday, just 24 hours after Malone signed a basketball scholarship to attend the University of Maryland, the Times-Dispatch says.

Visitors Lose And Tie

Upper Canada College concluded a cross-country cricket tour on a losing note Sunday at St. Michael's University School, dropping a 32-run decision to a Victoria side selected and captained by John Wenman.

Eric Kjekstad scored 31 runs, Dick Hales had 18 and Jim Wenman and Mick Walton each contributed 14 as Victoria ran up a total of 108 at University School. Upper Canada College was all-out for 76 despite having 50 runs on the board with only two wickets down.

On Saturday, Victoria ran up 154 for six wickets, declared with Dave Shaw leading the way with 55 runs. Auld supplied 28 runs, one more than the total recorded by teammate Brian Heaps.

Upper Canada College then chalked up 67 for eight and managed to hang on until time ran out.

Winner Rides in Ambulance

Racing Roundup

Times News Services

Chris Evert swept the New York Racing Association's triple Crown for three-year-olds by winning the $120,200 Coaching Club American Oaks at Belmont Park Saturday, but jockey Jorge Velasquez made it to the winner's circle the hard way.

Soon after the finish of the 1½-mile race, the horse, named after the United States tennis player, switched her tail and Velasquez fell to the track.

He slowly got to his feet and was driven by ambulance to the winner's circle for the victory parade and awards ceremony.

At Vancouver's Exhibition Park Saturday, outsider Blue Thumb made a strong finish and hung on to win the Sun Handicap over the fast-closing favorite, Love Your Host. The four-year-old colt went to the outside in the stretch under the command of jockey Andy Smith, sped around the pacesetting Winning Charge and hung on to win by three-quarters of a length in 1:44 4-5 in the 1 1-16 -mile test.

Love Your Host, with Frank Barroby aboard, ran into problems. He got behind a couple of horses going into the stretch turn, wasting a couple of seconds in trying to find room, then fianlly got through along the rail, but just too late to catch Blue Thumb.

But the eight-year-old's finish was good enough to hold off Decidedly D, which closed fast from the middle of the track to finish just half a length behind Love Your Host.

At Toronto Woodbine, meanwhile, Sandy Hawley rode his fifth successive Canadian Oaks Stakes winner Saturday as he guided Trudie Tudor to a 2½-length victory in Canada's top race for three-year-old fillies.

Trudie Tudor took the lead shortly after the start, opened it up to three lengths in the stretch and held on to outdistance Snow Game and take home the winner's portion of the $71,690 purse. Trudie Tudor ran the 1⅛ miles in 1:55 2-5 to pay $4.80, $4 and $3.

And in harness racing Wayne Eden, a 17-1 longshot, won the $141,562 Realization trot for four-year-olds at Roosevelt Raceway.

The win earned Wayne Eden an invitation to the American Trotting Championship June 29 and an opportunity to qualify for the $200,000 Roosevelt International Trot July 13.

West Wins Easily

India Hits a Low In Test Cricket

LONDON (Reuter) — Pace bowlers Geoff Arnold and Chris Old shot India out for 42, their lowest-ever test score, to give England an overwhelming win in the second cricket test match at Lords today.

England's victory by an innings and 285 runs clinched the test series, as England also won the first match in the series of three.

Resuming its second innings today on two runs for no wicket, India lost nine wickets for 40 runs to 70 minutes, with the injured B.S. Chandrasekhar not batting.

Old grabbed five wickets for 21 runs and Arnold four for 19.

Jury Found Double Fault

A coroner's jury has recommended improved lighting near the Royal Canadian Legion Hall at 761 Station Road, Langford, and no-parking signs installed opposite the hall entrance.

The jury made the recommendations Friday, following an inquest into the death of Mrs. Evelyn Ruth Pearl Northey, 35, of 1019 Fashoda, who was struck by a car in front of the hall, 2:30 a.m., June 9. The driver of the car was Brian Trueman, 21, of 868 Attree.

The jury said Trueman was under the influence of alcohol and exceeding the 35 mph speed limit. They said he was not paying due care and attention but said neither was Mrs. Northey in crossing the road. They said she also was under the influence of alcohol.

Coroner Edmond St. Jorre presided.

Desperate Scramble Fades For Job-Hunting Students

Victoria Times
MONDAY, JUNE 24, 1974 17
SECOND SECTION

By SUSAN RUTTAN
Times Staff

Student job-hunting has rarely been easier than this summer.

Hundreds of unfilled summer jobs are listed in the local student Canada Manpower office on Yates, although an end-of-June flood of high school stulents should take some of them.

But the desperate scramble of past years for even waitress jobs has almost disappeared.

"We've always had a little trouble recruiting for our tourist industry," said Manpower's John Atcheson. This year some of those waitress and chambermaid jobs are going begging.

The government is taking around 13,000 students on its payroll this summer in a $30 million job creation program launched this spring.

This almost equals the $30.5 million the federal government will spend on cross-Canada Opportunities for Youth projects this year.

The massive provincial government program is being run by the labor department's new employment programs section, which opened in January.

Around 10,000 of the 13,000 jobs created are in government departments under the Experience '74 and Innovations '74 programs.

As well, about 1,500 high school students across B.C. will work for municipal governments during July and August under the provincially-financed SWEEP '74 program.

The rest are jobs in the government's STEP '74, Industry Initiatives and Professions for Tomorrow programs

At last count, Canada Manpower had 1,132 vacant jobs, nearly all of them full-time ones. Normal level is around 500 or 600 empty jobs, said manager Stan Purdy, who said he's never seen it like this before.

"We have to believe unemployment in Victoria is relatively light," Purdy said.

The total B.C. government student job program, called Careers '74, breaks down this way:

— Experience '74: Students hired to fill regular jobs while government employees take holidays.

— Innovations '74: Students hired by provincial departments to work on short-term experimental projects for which the departments have been given funds.

Of the two, Innovations is more important. For example, the attorney-general's department has hired two students under the Experience program, 52 under Innovations.

— STEP '74: Students, mainly from colleges and universities, are hired by regional districts to do everything from recreational inventories to housing surveys.

The provincial government pays up to $125 per student per week, plus 15 per cent of administration costs.

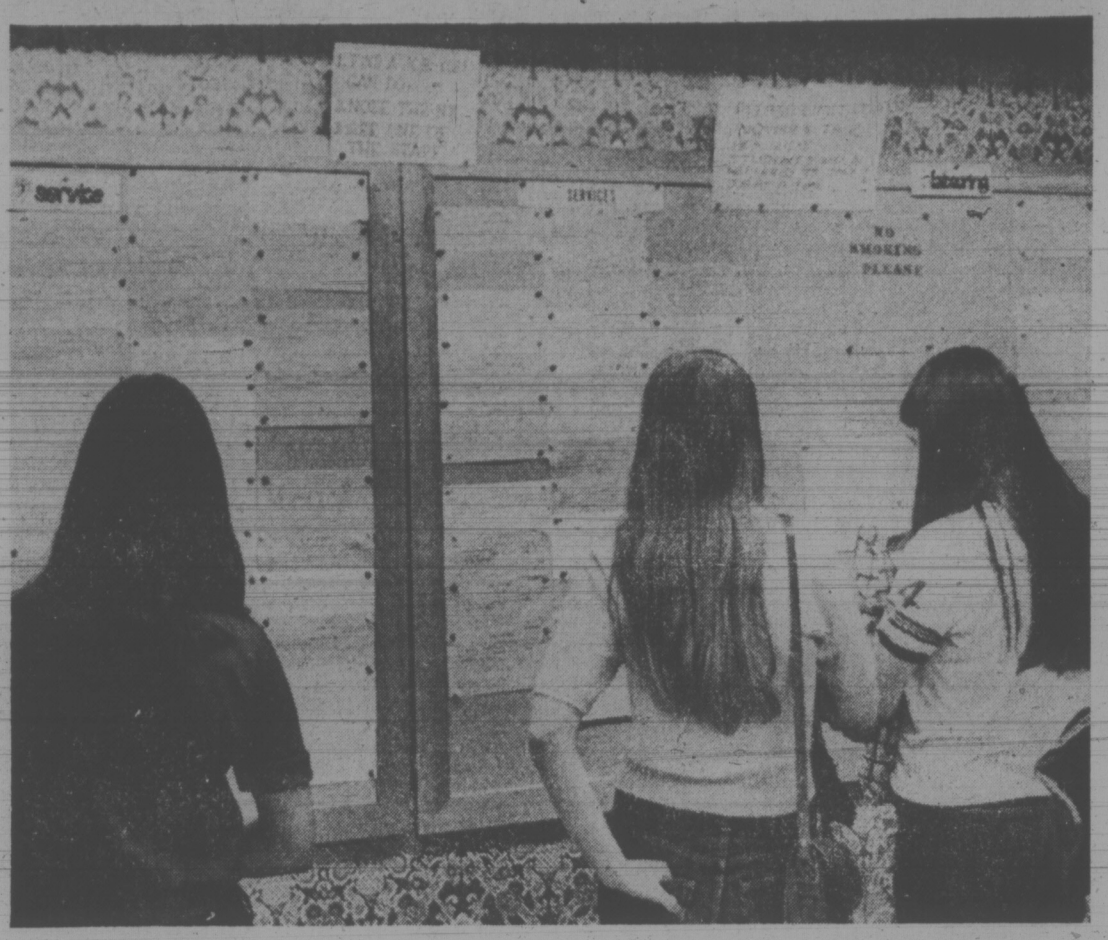
The Capital Regional District has hired 166 students under STEP, according to Bob Weir of the employment programs section.

— SWEEP '74: High school students hired by municipalities to do environmental projects, such as cleaning up parks. The provincial government pays up to $100 a week — the minimum wage — per student.

In Victoria SWEEP has foundered on strong objections from the Canadian Union of Public Employees, which refuses to allow students to do any jobs regular municipal employees might do unless they are paid the going union rate — $4.50 an hour.

Victoria, Saanich, Sidney and Esquimalt have all scrapped plans to hire students under SWEEP, because of CUPE objections.

Oak Bay has managed to get union approval to hire 20 SWEEP students to work under parks and recreation superintendant Duncan Russell.



Central Saanich, whose employees are non-union, has hired 50 students under SWEEP. Thirty will work for the Indian school board there.

— Industry Initiative '74: Students subsidized to work for small businesses or farms, with the government paying half their wage bill or $300 per month per student.

Response to this project from employers has been "just overwhelming," said Weir. Already 1,000 jobs have been created under it, and an arbitrary cutoff date had to be set to end the deluge of employer applications.

— Professions for Tomorrow: Law students hired to work with municipal police departments and business administration students working in small businesses.

Twenty OFY projects totalling well over $100,000 are operating in Victoria this summer, employing 116 students. As well there is one project each in Sidney, Saanich and Brentwood Bay, totalling 33 jobs in all.

The local Canada Manpower centre has hired nine students to run its student employment centre for the summer. This year one student has been assigned to find temporary work for transient youths staying at the Cool Aid youth hostel.

And the armed forces plan to hire 60 students for July and August in its student militia program. Students are paid to study first aid, bush survival, swimming and sports, and use of a submachine gun.

Despite the great number of government jobs, statistics of Manpower's student office show that from mid April to June 1 many more students were hired by private employers, 341 compared with 153 government jobs filled.

However, 59 of the private jobs were casual jobs, whereas almost all government jobs last the whole summer.

A Jewel Needs Guarding So Let's Guard This One

As a longtime praise-singer of the Gulf Islands — 30 years, in fact, of sustained, unswerving enchantment that began the first day we decided it was the one place we could call home forever — it's unnerving now to find myself in disagreement with so many old friends and neighbors.

Our quarrel is over the Island Trust Act. This, as you doubtless know, is legislation that provides for a panel of appointed and elected trustees to have the final say in the development of the 13 large islands and Lord knows how many smaller ones in that jewel chain in the sparkling sea. (There I go again.)

I am wholly in favor of this plan or, for that matter, any plan that might provide some controls for the future. At the moment those controls are but loosely defined. I am one who hopes they will be tough and far-reaching.

Those who oppose the trust, quite probably a majority, say, in effect, "Why us?" They wonder why the islands should have such an authority when other, unorganized areas in the province do not. They say, let us handle our own affairs without interference, without this assumption that we alone require the paternal guidance of a Big Brother.

The argument fails on two grounds.

The first is that each island is a little world to itself. Salt Spring residents know little and care less about what happens on Galiano. Galiano feels just as remote and indifferent to Thetis and so it goes. It is not a cohesive unit, in any sense, and so the islands are particularly off-guard and vulnerable to any change.

The second fact is that they are unique, less than a 10-minute jitney flight from the province's major centre of population yet still a beautiful and largely unspoiled paradise only now threatened with the desecrations of progress.

Thirty years ago this was not a problem. The Gulf Islands then were a retreat for the retired or the pioneer families or various eccentrics or people who could make a small, comfortable living without craving anything more.

What is happening there now, it seems to me, is, in microcosm, an example of what happens to every lovely place in time, a war between individual discovery and mass progress.

More and more the people who are coming are business people, merchants, tradesmen, real estate developers and entrepeneurs of one kind or another. They come for precisely the same reason that we came 30 years ago, because it is a gorgeous place to live and to raise a family. But they are no sooner here than, in direct contradiction to their reason for coming, they seek larger markets for their goods or services.

Having come, mainly, to get away from dense population and rapid development, they instantly seek more population, more development. "Growth" means more buyers for the things they sell or the services they perform.

It is perfectly understandable, of course, but it leads to the most ludicrous extremes. One of my good friends, for example, who went to Salt Spring to escape from "the rat race" is now advocating a bridge to link that island with Vancouver Island to bring Salt Spring "closer to the markets" and, what's more, sees no hint of incipient insanity in the idea. We have a clamor for bigger and faster ferries when what they want, if they only knew it, is smaller and slower ferries.

"Progress" has come to mean a Chamber of Commerce and service clubs and various booster's groups, all busily working in an antithesis of what brought them to the islands in the first place. Subdivisions have begun to spring up, no more or less the slums of the future that they are in Victoria and Vancouver, with the promise of gracious, country living that, in the end, they'll surely destroy. Even the Social Crediters could see the danger and slapped a 10-acre restriction on land sales to cool off the ubiquitous developers.

The boosters are, naturally, almost all "free enterprisers" who resent government controls as an invasion of their rights. Their man in Victoria is, naturally, a Conservative, Hugh Curtis who, I'm sure, recognizes the ambivalence of their position, but isn't rocking that boat.

What the trust will do, if it has any teeth, is to protect these foolish fellows from their own short-term ambitions and to protect for future generations just about the swellest real estate in the whole world.

There's all sorts of room in those islands for many, many more people. We, who had the luck or foresight to make them our home, have no wish to deny the discovery to anyone who cares to share it and, indeed, most of us never stop in our efforts to make converts. All we ask is that there be some men and women to see that development is in the hands of reasonable people and not rogue elephants.

Advance Polls

Voters in the Victoria federal riding who are unable to vote election day July 8, may cast their ballot during an advance poll from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m., June 29 and July 1 at p.m. YMCA, 880 Courtney.

— Margaret Vaughn-Birch Hall, 9699 Fourth, Sidney;

— Esquimalt United Church Hall, 500 Admirals Road.

— St. Matthews Church Hall, 771 Goldstream, Langford.

Pea Soup

Victoria's French Canadian community gathered Saturday for an early celebration of St. Jean Baptiste Day, which is actually today.

A traditional French Canadian meal of pea soup and pork and beans was served to around 100 people at St. Jean Baptiste Church hall, 301 Richmond.

Arsenal Seized, 'Gang' Blamed

A "virtual insurrection" was quelled over the weekend when Victoria police seized $450 worth of shotguns, a semi-automatic rifle and a high-powered hunting sling shot.

Police arrested two brothers, who said they bought the arsenal hours after a gangland-style riot at their home early Saturday morning.

Samuel Karaim, 20, appeared before Judge William Ostler in Victoria provincial court this morning and was fined $500, the maximum penalty for dangerous use of firearms. He pleaded guilty.

Karaim and his brother, William, were both charged after police, answering complaints from neighbors, went to their home at 2324 Dowler 2:30 p.m., Saturday, and heard gunshots.

His brother, William Charles, 21, appeared before Judge Edmond St. Jorre, pleaded guilty and was fined $500.

Karaim told Ostler he and his brother armed themselves partly for hunting and partly for protection.

The youth said a fight outside their home early Saturday led to a riot.

He said while he and six other youths, three of them girls, were inside the house, about 20 club-wielding youths attacked and "broke every window in the place."

Some shouted "Kill them, kill them," he said.

Prosecutor Peter Birkett said several bullets were found in a tree outside and that neighbors complained of shots striking the ground in front of the house.

Five Killed In Island Accidents

Five people were killed on Vancouver Island during the weekend, three in motor vehicle accidents, one in a fire and one in a boating mishap.

Rosie Hourigan, 17, of 23 Helmchen, died Sunday evening after being thrown from a motorcycle on which she was a passenger.

Saanich police said Miss Hourigan was thrown from the bike driven by Michael John Bamford, 19, of 271 Glenairlie, and landed under a truck which had stopped on the 1500-block West Burnside.

Saanich police requested residents in the 14-1500-block West Burnside and any persons driving in the area who might have seen the motorcycle about 7:20 p.m. to call the Saanich police department.

The body of a man who had been missing since Friday was found Sunday floating near Beechey Head, about six miles southeast of Sooke.

Sooke RCMP said Pentti Antero Hovatta, 38, of 1203 Clovelly Terrace, was found by a fisherman, Brian Gibson, 21, 1839 San Pedro.

Hovatta, who had been camping with his family at the Cheanuch camp grounds had gone fishing alone in a 14-foot aluminum boat Friday evening.

A man working in the Cheamainus area died instantly Saturday in a head-on collision on the Trans-Canada Highway about four miles south of Chemainus.

Names of the dead man and of the driver of the other car who was seriously injured were not released by RCMP pending notification of relatives.

Robert Hunter, 16, of Nanaimo died in Royal Jubilee Hospital Saturday after a car-truck accident the same day in Nanaimo.

CAMERA-LADEN travellers arrived home Sunday after three-week trip to China sponsored by Saanich Teachers Association. (Photo by John McKay).

CHINA TRIP 'FANTASTIC'

"It was absolutely fantastic. It was mind-boggling."

That's how Molly Phillips summed up a three-week trip to China from which she and 24 teachers and students arrived Sunday.

"The people of China were just open and warm," she said today. "Everywhere we went they would clap."

Mrs. Phillips, librarian at Claremont senior secondary, led the tour sponsored by Saanich Teachers' Association.

The group visited factories, factory nurseries and kindergartens, every type of school from a primary to Peking University, and a children's hospital, she said.

They visited Shanghai's former red light district, where dozens of former brothels have been converted to housing units. Here a former opium addict and a former prostitute told them how they had been rehabilitated by Chairman Mao and the revolution.

They saw the wheat harvest beginning around Peking, with everybody from school children to doctors and nurses going out to work in the fields.

At Peking University they saw professors and students helping build a new library. In China, said Mrs. Phillips, manual labor is part of everyone's life.

"It's absolutely fantastic how they have mobilized 800 million people and have got them all working with one common purpose," she said.

The group visited children's palaces, which are like neighborhood centres where children come after school to do sports, crafts and the arts.

The trip cost each traveller $1,500 plus expenses, and took Mrs. Phillips four years to arrange.

She said it was worth the wait.

What's Happening?

A four-session course on What's Happening to the Family will be offered at Camosun College on Wednesdays from July 10 to 31.

Sociologist Gerald Booth will lead informal discussions on different types of families; changes in authority patterns in families; effects of divorce, desertion and death; and possible future family forms.

Classes are 7 to 9:30 p.m. at Lansdowne campus, and babysitting will be provided. Fee is $10 per couple, $6 for one person.

Butler Wins Both

Ald. Jean Butler rolled to two easy victories in the Central Saanich byelection Saturday, capturing the mayoralty and a seat on the Capital Regional District Board.

The byelection, brought about by the death of Mayor Archie Galbraith in April, also saw former alderman Percy Lazarz elected to council.

With about 38 per cent of 3,496 eligible voters turning out, the totals:

For regional board director: Mrs. Butler, 591; Ald. David Hill, 408; Lazarz, 342.

Mrs. Butler said addition of a 75-bed acute care wing to the new Saanich Peninsula Hospital on Mount Newton Crossroad is high on her priority list.

The wing was promised about two years ago to replace Resthaven Hospital in Sidney and the project is a "must" which she is ready to battle for through every level of government, she said.

by Phyllis Fiarotta

Wycinanki is a paper art form that has been passed down from generation to generation of Polish country folk. It developed because paper was scarce. Designs could be described as paper-blot paintings.

The peasants used sheep shears to cut birds, flowers, and abstract designs. The traditional design is the "leluja" or the Joy Tree made at the Easter season to express the joy of the coming of spring. Today's design is a typical floral.

1. Choose a lightweight colored paper for Wycinanki. Origami paper, sold in small inexpensive packages, is ideal.

2. Fold the paper in half and cut out simple basic shapes that will lend themselves to a flower or a leaf shape (sketch No. 1). Also shown is the smaller leaf shape that does not require cutting on the fold.

3. The thin dotted lines shown in No. 1 are cutting lines. Start to cut from the outer edge and sweep inward. The flower uses curved lines while the leaf is formed by simply cutting wedges along the outer curve. Do not cut too close to the centre fold (heavy dotted line).

4. To copy the exact design shown, the individual motifs are placed on a boxed network called a grid. The grid is one square equals ½ inch. For information on how to enlarge designs placed on a grid, send your request along with a stamped, self-addressed, business-size envelope to the Leisure Craftsman in care of this newspaper.

5. The floral design should be exactly alike on both sides of a centre stem, extending out from a base leaf cluster.

6. Colors are bold and always placed on a white background.

7. To glue, carefully brush white glue to the back of the cutout designs.

Compromise Vacation

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I can't agree on what constitutes a vacation. Paul and I have four kids, ranging in ages from 10 to 16. Last summer a friend turned over his farm to us and we took the kids and spent three weeks there. Paul is a country boy at heart. He likes to get up at the crack of dawn and run the tractor and spend every evening rocking on the front porch, looking into space and listening to the crickets. Meanwhile, I do all the laundry, cooking and dishes. (This is a vacation?)

Paul wants to go to this farm again, and I say we should leave the kids home and take a real vacation alone somewhere. My mother agreed to stay with our kids. What should I do? Take the credit cards and go to Reno? — City Girl

DEAR CITY GIRL: To Reno with credit cards? What for? To gamble or file for a divorce? Why not compromise, and do what Paul wants to do for half the vacation and what you want to do for the other half?

DEAR ABBY: I'm not much of a letter writer, but I need some answers, so here goes:

The other day I got a questionnaire in the mail. It was a form to fill out. There were lots of questions about a friend of mine who apparently had applied for a job with a big company. Here are some of the questions:

Has ——— ever been in trouble with the law?

Does ——— drink? Moderately? ——— Excessively? ———

Does ——— use drugs?

What do you know about ———'s general health?

Please name some of ———'s undesirable qualities.

Name some of ———'s good qualities.

Abby, my friend must have given my name for a reference or I wouldn't have received this questionnaire, right?

I have known this person for about 15 years, but I can't honestly answer some of these questions. In fact, if I could I wouldn't want to. I'm afraid if I don't fill out this form, my friend won't get the job.

How would you handle this? — Stuck

DEAR STUCK: You are under no obligation to answer the questionnaire. I would write a letter telling what I DO know about the applicant and no more.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "WHO AM I?" You are a 19-year-old high school dropout who never made a serious effort to stick with anything once the going got rough.

You didn't listen to your father because you thought advice from "a loser" wasn't worth anything.

You didn't graduate from high school because you were too lazy to make your grades, so you told yourself that school was a waste of time, that you had learned all there was to learn there, and you'd be better off in the business world.

Determined as you were to do "your own thing," you haven't done anything because you still don't know what "your own thing" is.

Right now you aren't anybody. But if you sincerely want to be somebody, do this: Go back to school (Adult education — night classes are available for those who work days.) First, get your high school diploma, then learn a trade or develop a special skill, and work like a sonuvagun. You will then be "somebody," and you won't have to write to Dear Abby to find out who you are.

Taste, Smell Researchers Win Reprieve

WASHINGTON (WP) — The government has given a reprieve to the world's only program specializing in the treatment of people who have lost their sense of taste and smell.

Dr. Charles Edwards, the assistant secretary for health in the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare, has asked for a full scientific review of the controversial program, which was due to be closed at the end of June for economy reasons.

It will also end studies that appear to be on the verge of discovering the basic biochemical mechanism of taste, something that never has been clearly understood before, said Dr. Robert I. Henkin, who is conducting the research at the National Heart and Lung Institute.

Edwards said he wants the scientific review to determine if Henkin's taste studies are truly leading to some basic understandings, and therefore worth carrying on, and if they should be moved to some other institute at NIH or to a public health service hospital.

The taste research and clinic will continue while the study is going on, Edwards said.

Henkin, who has been doing research at NIH since 1961 and is a commissioned officer in the U.S. Public Health Service, met with Edwards Tuesday to go over his research. He reported that Edwards told him the patients will not be abandoned.

Henkin, meanwhile, had been assigned out of NIH to the Public Health Service Hospital in Norfolk, Va., where he would be a ward physician. Henkin said the reassignment has also been stalled by Edwards' action.

Henkin said he felt his research has been reviewed over the years by his peers in the scientific community. He said he has published 120 papers on his research. "Isn't that enough?"

While not understanding how the body's taste mechanisms work, Henkin discovered that some people who suddenly lose their sense of taste — either through other diseases such as viral infections, a blow on the head or taking certain kinds of drugs — regain that sense if they are treated with minute amounts of zinc, a trace metal normally found in the body.

He realizes that zinc is not a cure-all for taste problems; only about half of his patients improve when they are given the treatment.

But Henkin feels that further research will uncover other treatments for people who have lost their sense of taste and smell.

The HEW decision came after an intensive lobbying effort by some of Dr. Henkin's 2000 patients, who felt they would once again lose their sense of taste and smell if the research was stopped.

Nanny Rentals

VANCOUVER (CP) — If anybody in Canada wants a British nanny to look after the children and is willing to pay $425, Deirdre Lehmann, owner of a Montreal company called Anglo-Canadian Staff Ltd., is the woman to call.

But before you get one, you must first prove you are a suitable "nanny-employer." It's not essential to have a swimming pool, Mrs. Lehmann said, but it helps.

If you pass the test, you must then wait about four weeks for your nanny to arrive from Britain. If you can't afford the $425, mother's helpers and housekeepers come cheaper, only $325.

"If we do not have exactly what a client requires, we will look for just about anybody," said Mrs. Lehmann. "We have an agency in London which recruits for us."

Mrs. Lehmann also will provide a husband-and-wife team to manage your home, but only if you are rich and have an extra-large house. A couple will cost about $800.

In the busy work of "below stairs" trading, butlers are decidedly a fringe item.

"We do have the odd butler on file, but there really is not too much use," she said. "We just do not have the kind of society that understands butlers. Canadians may feel they have a use for a butler-valet-houseman, but there is no way that a British butler is going to attach himself to the end of a vacuum cleaner."

The application form for these services is three pages long. It requires not only your profession and how many children you have but whether your employee will have use of your car and what time he or she is required to return from an evening out.

Potential employees are also screened but in the final analysis, the girls in England accept or reject the Canadian employer.

I read that a new wheelchair has been made available—one that enables the patient to stand up whenever he or she wishes simply by pressing some levers. I read that this chair can open up a new and more useful life to many an arthritic, partly paralyzed person or heart patient.

EMPHYSEMA HELP

Emphysema — as many people know to their sorrow — generally comes to people mainly in middle and later life, because their lungs have lost much elasticity. For some reason, in some people, the thin walls of the tiny air sacs in the lungs break down and the person then has trouble getting the used air out of his lungs. This makes him feel short of breath, and every breath is an effort; it is hard for him to get sufficient oxygen.

Some of these emphysematous people have a tendency to get bronchitis and frequent, severe colds. They cannot move around as comfortably as they would like, and a man (five times as many men as women develop emphysema) may develop a "barrel chest" after years of straining to get in enough oxygen to be comfortable.

Anyone with emphysema would do well not to smoke and not to work in a place where he is repeatedly exposed to lung irritants, dusts, or fumes.

There are a number of things that people with emphysema can do to keep themselves as comfortable as possible. There are small devices that a person can carry with him in case he becomes short of breath and needs some extra oxygen. There are also some very helpful exercises especially designed for such persons. In some areas, emphysema patients gather together in "Breath of Life" Clubs. I see that there are several in Illinois.

There is also a new pamphlet, "Focus," put out quarterly by the Illinois Lung Association, for $1 a year. It is filled with information and helpful suggestions for emphysematous persons. Interested persons can write the Office of Publication, Illinois Lung Association, Box 2576, Springfield, Illinois 52708. Every sufferer from emphysema could be helped much by this journal.

HEARING LOSS

For years, in answer to those people who violently oppose the use of sodium fluoride in our drinking water, I have told of the studies made in areas where there are high amounts of sodium fluoride naturally in the drinking water; these studies have shown that people living in such areas tend to have stronger bones and better teeth; and aging women have less of a tendency to develop a "buffalo hump" (when the spine collapses after the menopause.)

Now I read in a report from the University of Southern California School of Medicine that Dr. Fred H. Linthicum, Jr. and other experts on hearing have found that sodium fluoride seems to help people in another way: it plays an important role in preventing a type of progressive hearing loss known as otosclerosis.

Free for the Asking

Now that the excitement of filing your income tax return has passed, you may be in the mood to learn some interesting facts and figures about the world of taxation.

The 36-page bilingual booklet "Non-taxing look at taxation" tells you, for instance, that the Department of National Revenue consists of two sections. One deals only with taxation, the other with customs and excise.

In addition to its Head Office, the Taxation Division maintains a Data centre and 28 District Offices. Most direct contacts with taxpayers are conducted from these district offices. If you cannot reach your nearest office by a local call, ask the long distance operator for Zenith 0-4000. There is no charge.

The returns of more than 10 million taxpayers arrive at the Data Centre in Ottawa between the end of January and the end of April. Some 100,000 returns usually arrive too late.

The booklet discusses how these income tax returns are processed and that computers check the identification of every taxpayer and verify his calculations. Forms with errors are rejected.

The booklet also explains what the department does to ensure that taxpayers don't cheat, how it searches for delinquent payers and how the Tax Avoidance Division works.

Status Action Still Slow

By ELIZABETH FORBES

There is no doubt that the report of the Royal Commission on the Status of Women in Canada, released a little over three years ago, has been almost one-hundred per cent responsible for the increased interest shown by women in running for office in this federal election.

The dedicated urge to see recommendations of that report implemented, has created within long organized women's groups and newer ones that have sprung up since the report was tabled, a clear understanding that if the job is to be done, women must get in there and do it.

It is the only way in which the main recommendations will ever be seriously considered. Men give lip service to these worthwhile suggestions. They pass the least controversial of them. But when it comes down to the thorny issues, they tend to shrug, make jokes and give half promises for the future.

The claim is made — and truthfully — that already about one-third of the commission's 122 recommendations that come under federal jurisdiction, have been implemented.

However, in most instances, these have to do with milder reforms. All the tough, controversial issues — such as amending the Citizens Act, equalizing pension benefits, guaranteeing marital and property rights and removing abortion from the Criminal Code have yet to be touched.

In British Columbia 10 women have been named. When you look at the over-all picture it is not many, but what they lack in quantity they make up in intelligence and dedication.

Among them is a former municipal mayor (our own Frances Elford), a public relations officer, a sales manager of a radio station, a newspaper columnist and author, and a business consultant who is the mother of 10 children, all but one now self-employed, (New Westminster's Progressive Conservative candidate, Marg Gregory).

To my knowledge, four of them have said publicly that the need to implement the more serious recommendations of the Status of Women Report, is of major importance as far as they are concerned.

Two have gone even further. They insist that if they had not run up against so many "brick walls" and been faced with so many frustrations, they would probably still be sitting on the sidelines.

Joan Wallace, making a first bid for office over in Burnaby-Richmond-Delta riding, was in on formation of a Status of Woman Action Group in the Vancouver area, soon after the commission report came out.

She did a stint as head of a SWAG council on the mainland and was a representative from that group to a national women's advisory council set up in Ottawa.

Her experiences in trying to bring about reforms through those groups has convinced her that "the only way" is to send more capable women to the House of Commons to fight for these reforms.

Simma Holt, also making a first try in Vancouver-East riding, has worked untiringly over the years for the underprivileged. As a columnist and author of three books dealing respectively with the Doukhabor situation, mainland motorcycle gangs and the teen-age revolution, she has spared no effort to implement reforms.

She tells you, in no uncertain terms, that it was her "burning anger" with the lack of interest in these reforms that pushed her into a try to get "down to Ottawa and fight."

In Victoria, Frances Elford also doesn't hesitate to say that one of her reasons for seeking election is to see the main recommendations of the Status of Women report implemented.

She reminds you that it was a Liberal government that established the Royal Commission on the Status of Women and a Liberal government that has implemented one-third of the recommendations, to date.

She also points out that "the really thorny issues have yet to be tackled" and that "only as more capable women are elected as Members of Parliament will those issues be resolved."

It's sad to have to concede that only a percentage of the capable women running in British Columbia will be elected. What that percentage will be depends on the voting public.

Will the majority think deeply enough to realize there is definitely more women needed in Ottawa? And will they look at those running in British Columbia and consider them not merely as women but as capable persons, ready and willing to fight for and to initiate many needed reforms?

Only the results on July 8 will give us the answer.

Swiss Omelet No Fuss Nourishment

By HILDA BEASTALL

The covered frypan mentioned recently in this column, or an electric frypan (or skillet) also with a cover, has many uses when warm weather disinclines us to add more heat by using the oven.

We want nourishing, tasty meals with as little fuss as possible and we don't enjoy too many meals made up of "something cold from the refrigerator."

SWISS OMELET

2 Tbsp diced lean and fat bacon
2 large or 3 small eggs.
Few grains of salt
½ c. milk plus 3 Tbsp skim milk powder.
¼ c. wheat germ.
2 Tbsp grated cheddar type cheese
1 Tbsp chopped parsley or chives.

Put the diced bacon into the cold pan and cook a few minutes with gentle heat until almost crisps. Meanwrile, pour milk, with added milk powder, over the wheat germ.

Sprinkle with the grated cheese and chopped parsley or chives. Cover again for about three minutes without direct heat until the cheese melts.

Gentle heat is the important point when cooking eggs and cheese, for high heat toughens the protein in both, making it indigestible and unpleasant.

For a healthy breakfast to last through a busy morning, this omelet served hot on wholewheat toast takes no longer than the percolating coffee.

As a lunch for hungry school or holidaying children, serve with fresh or canned fruit for dessert.

You will find such a meal satisfying to the point of no snacking before the next meal. Snack foods raise the cost of living out of proportion to their value as food.

Full directions come inside each packet of 12 tablets; each tablet makes four good desserts with the addition of a pint of milk.

Two or three points bear to be emphasized here. Set out the 4 dessert dishes first, for the rennet sets quickly after being added to the lukewarm milk. Pour at once into the dishes and move without jolting into the refrigerator to complete setting. This occurs within an hour if you are in a hurry.

Delicious served with a grating of hard sugar, or some pieces of chopped candied ginger, chopped dates, or a fruit juice.

Human Speech Tied to Hands

By HAL WILLARD

WASHINGTON (WP) — Why are humans the only animals with the ability to talk? Isn't this the sort of question all children ask and all adults can immediately answer? Well, maybe children ask it but if they ask the same people I did they aren't finding out much. I had to go all the way to the Smithsonian's emeritus physical anthropologist to get the answer.

Most people I asked before I got to the Smithsonian mumbled something about humans having more intelligence or some extra equipment in the throat.

The question arose after I wrote a story about Margaret Duffner, speech teacher at George Mason University. The story had begun: "Vocal cords, like the thumb, give humans an edge over other animals . . ."

I handed the story to the copy desk on my way home, but before I could get to the door, copy editor John M. Scott announced in unnecessarily loud tones: "Animals have vocal cords, too."

It appeared that I would have to find out what I was writing about.

It didn't take long the next day, to end up talking to Dr. T. Dale Stewart at the Smithsonian. I asked my question.

He began: "Millions of years ago the primates walked on all fours, just like other animals (humans are primates). Primates were vegetarians. Then when conditions were such that the food supply decreased, two things happened: primates had to stretch upwards to get food from trees and some of them (humans) became hunters of other animals for food."

He went on: "Humans had to drag their game back to their lair. As time went by they realized it was easier to try to carry it with two limbs. That made them walk on only the other two. At last humans began to walk upright."

But what about talking . . .?

"The new position of the head — sitting on top of the neck instead of hanging out horizontally — caused the air passages in the throat to change and this helped make it possible to form words rather than just make sounds, to talk."

Aha! I told you he'd get there.

"The other major thing is that humans use their hands so much. This developed the part of the brain that controls the hands. It grew stronger and bigger. It happens that the part of the brain that controls speech is right next to the part that controls hands, and benefitted. The human brain became superior to any other."

WRAPS COME OFF CAR

SAINT JOHN, N.B. (CP) — Joseph Rose, an executive of Bricklin Canada Ltd. said late last week that all the wraps on the Bricklin sports car will come off Tuesday.

Among those scheduled for the unveiling of the Saint John assembled sports car, at New York City will be Premier Richard Hatfield, Paul S. Creaghan, New Brunswick economic growth minister, and Harry A. Mason, the department's deputy minister.

The two-seat fastback car is scheduled to be built by Bricklin Canada Ltd. A Saint John subsidiary of General Vehicle Inc. of Phoenix, Ariz. The New Brunswick government has a 51-per-cent interest in the subsidiary. The other 49 per cent is owned by General Vehicle.

The car, which reportedly boasts a number of safety features, will have an acrylic body made of panels manufactured in Minto, N. B. The final assembly will be at the Bricklin plant located in East Saint John.

About 10,000 Bricklin are scheduled to come off the production line this year, according to the company. In Saint John, a staff of about 90 is setting up a production line to build frames and roll cages and install American Motors engines in the vehicles.

Alta. Indians Condemn Aid Policy, Park Plan

EDMONTON (CP) — Ottawa's policy of withdrawing special services to treaty Indians who move to cities from reserves drew sharp criticism Saturday during final sessions of the Indian Association of Alberta's annual conference.

More than 250 delegates from three Alberta treaty areas attending the conference on the Enoch Reserve, eight miles west of here, told the association to take a tough line in approaching the government for a policy reversal.

Delegates also said any social service aid going to Indians should be handled by the department of Indian affairs, not the province. Ottawa considers Indians who live off the reserve ordinary citizens, so aid to them is provided by provincial services. But delegates wanted the federal government to live up to its treaty obligations and take back that control.

The association also was told to take any action necessary to oppose development of a new provincial park in the Cold Lake area, considered traditional Indian hunting and fishing grounds. Any move to turn it into a park is "an infringement of treaty rights," delegates said.

— allow Alberta treaty Indians to fish in any Alberta waters, with treaty cards acting as fishing licences;

— allow trap lines to be registered for five years rather than one, and for the department of Indian affairs to pay the licence fees;

— ask Ottawa to negotiate with the province to allow Indians to hunt from roadsides.

Portuguese Gov't. Orders Men to Work

LISBON (UPI) — The Portuguese government today prepared legislation to control a wave of strikes which have plagued the country's economy since the April 25 military coup.

In its first direct intervention in a labor dispute, the government Sunday broke a job action by Portuguese seamen, ordering the men to work as long as necessary aboard four tankers to ensure the country's oil supply.

Government officials said the cabinet would hold lengthy meetings for the next three days. No agenda was disclosed but political sources said the ministers would draw up legislation to control a two-month series of strikes by janitors, shipbuilders, bakers, streetcar drivers, fisherman, postal workers and others.

Strikes had been banned for 48 years prior to the coup that overthrew a rightwing dictatorship and brought the present centre-left government to power.

The government Sunday took control of four tankers idled in Persian Gulf ports and ordered crewmen refusing to work overtime to take on 134,000 tons of crude oil.

The Portuguese merchant navy union last week banned overtime work for its 7,500 members on ships around the world to back demands for minimum wage hikes from $116 to $275 monthly.

The government said it would return the tankers to their owner, the Portuguese Tanker Society, "as soon as possible." It said it took control of the vessels "to prevent a conflict that is not yet resolved from significantly interfering with the economic situation in the country."

Last month the government said it would publish within 30 days legislation to regulate strikes and stimulate the economy, already in bad shape from the drain of 13 years of guerrilla wars in Portugal's African territories, which the new regime has pledged to end. The deadline for the new law is June 27.

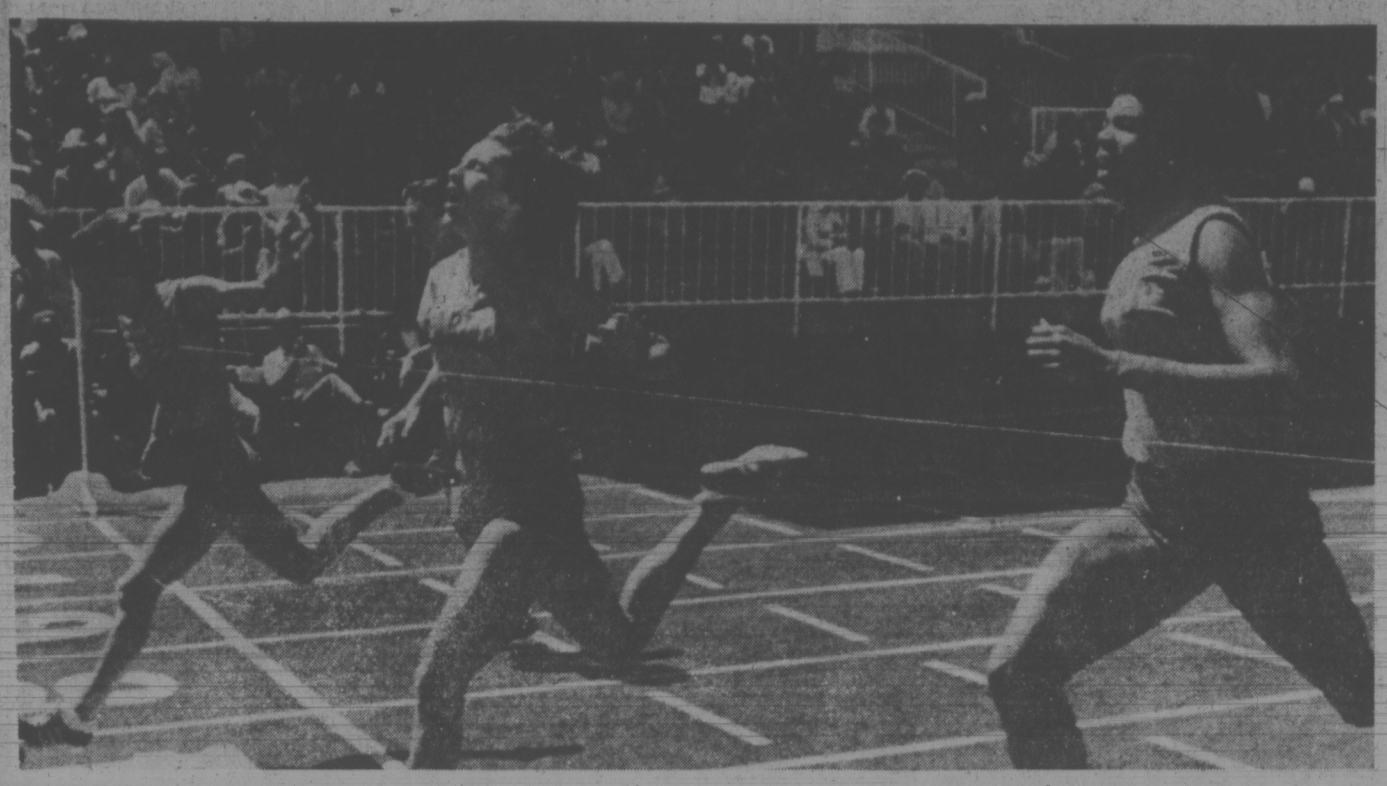
Like Topsy, It Keeps on Growing



Cheryl Blevins of Victoria Nips Calgary's Linda Browne in junior women's 200 metres

They've tried and they've tried, but there just seems no way they can put the lid on the mushrooming annual Victoria Y-Times track and field meet.

Last year, officials pleaded with coaches to "keep the number down." But still a separate "B" division had to be added to cater for the total of nearly 900 young athletes.

This year, officials announced not so long ago, entries would be limited to around 600. That was the plan but again it didn't work. Just a few days ago, the number of clubs in the meet from B.C., Alberta and Washington was said to be 35. And the number of entries was back up near the 900 mark.

When the meet opened Saturday in glorious weather at Centennial Stadium, though, officials found themselves with 985 athletes from 42 clubs.

The weather, plus the high calibre of many of the young athletes, produced two days of first-class track and field competition. But once again the numbers brought headaches galore for the team of 100 officials.

Chairman Jack Syme and meet director Jack Rowe were kept on the run throughout. And in the midst of it all, a special presentation was made honoring the work of Jack and Trudy Carson.

But, despite the experience of the officials in running a smooth meet, races were still being run in the darkness after 10 Saturday night, and even then a couple of the relays had to be held over until Sunday.

And, when the meet finally ended two and-a-half hours later than expected Sunday, former Canadian Olympic swimming coach Archie McKinnon, for years the Flying Y's track and field coach, and Times Sports editor Doug Peden handed out the trophies before a crowd that had dwindled to a handful.

Carson confessed the meet, biggest in the Pacific Northwest, is just "too popular" and said, in order to make it easier to handle in the two days, officials are now considering dropping some events from each of the classes.

At this year's meet, there was a full program of both track and field events in divisions for junior girls (aged 16 to 18 inclusive), juvenile boys (16 and 17) and for both boys and girls in the midget (14 and 15), bantam (12 and 13), peewee (10 and 11) and tyke (under-10). And in most of these divisions there were full programs of "B" as well as "A" events.

Something has to be done, Carson agreed, but officials will have to wait until next year to see if any bid to cut down the numbers actually works. Somehow, the clubs always seem to slip in a few extra athletes.

Ironically, it was one of the most entertaining contests that helped make the second day's program drawn out. The new spring medley relays, introduced this season to replace the four-by-400-metre relays in many invitational meets, were immensely popular with the athletes and with those in the stand who hung around long enough to see them. But the setting up and then running of the races, which involved athletes covering 400, 200, 400 and 800 metres in turn, took much longer.

The medleys produced two of nine B.C. records that fell in the two days (another record was equalled) and provided an excellent buildup for the final event, the feutared open men's 5,000 metres.

That was won by Vancouver Olympic Club's Duncan Klett, who led from start to finish in an effortless run.

Powerful Richmond Kajaks, first last year with 522 points, chalked up an incredible 1,098 in boys' events alone and went on to top the overall standings with 1,549 points.

Heartbreak Hits Ken

You ever-so-gently-tap the high-jump bar with your toe and it tumbles; or you stumble in the 1,500-metre final. Or, like Victoria's Ken Kirzinger, you're told you've set a provincial javelin record and you're given a gold medal — and then you have to give it back!

It happened to Kirzinger at the weekend Y-Times track and field meet at Centennial Stadium. He went home Saturday night the toast of the first day after heaving the javelin 53.18 metres, taking the winner's place on the podium to receive the gold medal and hearing the announcement that he had broken the B.C. bantam boys' record with his throw of 53.8 metres.

And he went back Sunday to be told that his effort had been a waste of time.

Now 14, Kirsinger was a month over the age limit for the 12 and 13-year-old bantams and should have been throwing in the midget class.

Tom Poirier of Richmond Kajaks, who was earlier announced as having placed second behind Kirzinger, took the gold medal. He equalled the B.C. record of 52.78 metres set by Phil Olsen of Nanaimo.

Unhappily for Kirzinger, he could have been throwing in the midget class, which was won by Harold Willers of Victoria Track Club with a toss of 48.16 metres.

"It's our fault, there's no two ways about it," Rowe said in apologizing to Kirzinger. "He should have been entered in the midgets, I just don't know how it happened."

Kirzinger's is an incredible success story. He started throwing the javelin this season, only a matter of weeks ago, and was making his first appearance on a club team after recently joining the Victoria Flying Y Track Club.

Records Battered

The 12-year-old student at West Bay School in West Vancouver managed a smile when it was anncunced his run of two minutes 19.1 seconds had broken the provincial record of 2:21.6 for the peewee boys' 800 metres.

But, for the boy who joined the Legion Norwesters Track Club only last year and equalled a B.C. record in his first season, it was no big deal.

Mike pushed his cap back on his head at a jaunty angle and said he felt he could and should have smashed the B.C. 400-metre record as well as the 1,500 and 800 metres.

Mike's first record was set Saturday when he ran 4:42.6 in the peewee 1,500 metres and he was only three-tenths of a second in winning the 400 metres. As well, Pennington led Norwesters to victory in the peewee boys' sprint medley relay when he streaked away from the field in the 800-metre anchor leg.

The outstanding girl athlete trophy went to Dana Arnim of Rainbow Runners Track Club of Seattle. She broke Val Duncan's B.C. record of 58.2 seconds with a run of 57.5 in winning the bantam girls' 400 metres. And she also won the 100 metres and placed second in the 200.

Laura Yeager of Flanagan Clan Track Club of Seattle won the outstanding girl trophy for throwing events, breaking the record of 10.14 metres with a throw of 11.13 in the peewee girls' shot put and also winning the javelin. There was no trophy awarded this year for girls' jumping events.

A 12-year-old Grade 6 student at Richmond's Daniel Woodward School, who has only just joined the Kajaks, set two B.C. records and took home both the trophies for outstanding performances in boys' jumping and throwing events.

On Saturday, Ray Bryant broke the peewee boys' discus record with a throw of 31.92 metres and Sunday he jumped 1.51 metres (4 feet 11½ inches) to smash the provincial high jump record of 4' 10½".

Lex Ludke of Western Washington, who was third, set what is believed to be a world age-class record for 10-year-olds with his jump of 4' 8½".

The meet's other B.C. records were set by Randy Schellenburg of South Fraser Valley in the bantam boys' 3,000 with a time of 9:27.2 and by two relay teams.

Charges In Peking

PEKING (Reuter) — New wall posters appeared in Peking today saying that more than 200 persons have died in massacres in recent years in China's southeastern Kiangsi province.

The posters also reported fresh clashes between feuding factions and referred to two "bloodshed incidents" in Kaingsi province June 10 and 18.

Observers said it is possible some statements in the wall posters, put up by workers in the strife-torn province, are exaggerated but they left little doubt that the situation there is potentially explosive.

Poster campaigns are going on in a number of leading Chinese provincial centres, with local leaders under attack either for mishandling the current campaign against former defence minister Lin Piao and Chinese philosopher Confucius or for suppressing criticism.

Today's posters did not say when the 200 reported deaths took place or whether they were spread over a long period. But they said whole families, including children, were wiped out and the dead included a 71-year-old man.

They blamed the killings on former provincial leader Chen Shih-ching, who rose to prominence at the end of the 1060s and dropped from view about two years ago.

Posters signed by workers in the Kiangsi capital of Nanchang put up Sunday reported a clash June 19. They said blood was spilled and several persons jailed when fighting broke out after a right-wing group armed itself with iron bars and sticks and seized several trucks as propaganda vehicles.

Elsewhere, the posters said that followers of the late Lin Piao tried to turn Kiangsi into a Lin Piao base and still are trying to make a comeback.

The writers of one series of posters said they have much more data on the situation on Kiangsi and want an interview with Chairman Mao Tse-tung to tell him.

Several of the wall posters have taken the form of open letters to Mao, although there has been no word that the 80-year-old leader has acknowledged any of them.

Cambodian Capital Hit By Chinese-Made Rockets

PHNOM PENH (UPI) — The Cambodian high command today reported two military victories over Communist rebels far from Phnom Penh but insurgents fired three more 107mm rockets into the Cambodian capital Sunday night, killing five persons and wounding nine others.

One of the Chinese-made projectiles virtually wiped out a family of 10, killing an army captain and three of his children and wounding the other six members of his family.

Another rocket fell about a half mile south of President Lon Nol's residence, killing one civilian and wounding three others. The third shell landed in the Boeng Tumpon Lake.

The Cambodian command said government troops recaptured Trapeang Kraloen, 36 miles southwest of Phnom Penh on Highway 4, and reopened a stretch of the strategic road linking the capital with the country's only deep sea port — Kompong Som.

Sunday's shelling was the sixth consecutive day of rocket attacks on Phnom Penh. Most were aimed at the southern part of the city, where the presidential palace and the U.S. embassy are.

In South Vietnam, Communist sappers crept into the Hoa My government infantry camp, the former U.S. camp Evans 15 miles northwest of Hue, and blew up more than 25,000 gallons of gasoline and fuel oil, military sources said.

Tht sources said the attack in northern South Vietnam took place before sun-up today. Sappers on Sunday night also blew up a dump containing 4,500 tons of artillery shells and other munitions seven miles southeast of Hue, the sources said.

Arrested Man Takes Pet Chicken to Jail

VANCOUVER (CP) — City police arrested their first chicken Sunday when they arrested a man wanted on a marijuana possession warrant.

Police separated James Walter Schelby, 24, from his chicken, however, soon after they arrived at the city jail and sent the bird to the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals.

And a report that the chicken laid an egg in the jail was denied. A police spokesman said the egg was laid earlier in the front seat of Schelby's camper truck.

Tornado Year May Be Worst

WASHINGTON (AP) — From the standpoint of severity, 1974 is shaping up as possibly the worst tornado year in United States history.

U.S. government weathermen blame the numerous twisters on especially capricious antics of one of the two high-altitude "jet streams" that help control weather.

In response to queeries from The Associated Press, the forecasters said:

—There have been 371 deaths and possibly 5,000 injuries so far this year from 658 twisters that have struck in all but 14 states, causing losses in property, crops and animals unofficially estimated at close to $500 million. The death toll so far is the worst since the 450 recorded for the same span in 1953.

—Numerically alone, the 1974 total of tornadoes may exceed last year's record of 1,109—a total that led the U.S. national weather service to call 1973 The Year of the Tornado. The only hope that the numerical record won't be exceeded lies in the fact that the peak months for tornadoes—april, May and June — have almost passed.

But meteorologist Allen Pearson, director of the weather service's national severe storms forecast centre at Kansas City, Mo., says that many of the tornadoes this year have been "a lot more severe" than those of last year.

Philippine Rebels Attack: 49 Dead

MANILA (AP) — Forty-nine persons are reported dead and another 17 missing in a new outbreak of Moslem guerrilla attacks in the southern Philippine island of Mindanao.

Brig.-Gen. Fortunate Abat, chief of the Central Mindanao Command, said the rebels have taken the offensive again to get support at the Islamic foreign ministers' conference now under way in Kuala Lumpur, Malaysia.

Military sources said the rebels began last Thursday shelling the airport at Cotabato, in central Mindanao; attacked the Maria Cristina Falls hydroelectric plant in the northern part of the island; and raided the town of Midsayyap, 40 miles east of Cotabato.

Four soldiers were killed in the Midsayyap attack, while two carpenters were killed and a guard was wounded when 20 rebels attacked the power plant, the military said. The plant, the largest on the island, was slightly damaged by an explosion, but power distribution continued uninterrupted.

FLOOD LEVELS STABLE

KAMLOOPS (CP) — Rising water levels on Shuswap Lake in the British Columbia interior caused some flooding during the weekend, but levels throughout the rest of the province remained generally stable.

About two dozen homes and five businesses were affected in Sicamous, about 80 miles east of Kamloops, but no evacuations were made. Shuswap Lake reached a level of 15.78 feet Sunday, and is expected to continue rising at a rate of four to five inches a day.

A water resources spokesman said Sunday, however, the lake was still about two feet below the 1972 flood level, and is expected to stop rising about one foot below that level.

The lower Fraser River dropped .26 feet by Sunday from Friday, when the Mission guage was reading 22.12 feet. The spokesman said it may rise slightly again, but now is not expected to pose a major flooding threat.

The upper Fraser River rose .29 feet at Prince George, where the Sunday level was 29.06 feet.

Alcan Wiped Out Beaver—Trapper

PRINC GEORGE, (CP) — A convention of the British Columbia Registered Trappers Association has been told that the Aluminum Company of Canada wiped out beaver and muskrat populations on the Nechako River when it was flooded last march.

Trapper Leo Laroque said beaver and muskrat were imprisoned under ice on the river and drowned when Alcan flooded the river to lessen the storage of its Nechako reservoir in north-central B.C. and ease the threat of flooding in the lower mainland later in the year.

Laroque said that he and a conservation officer spent two days on the river without seeing a sign of the fur-bearing animals which are normally plentiful at this time of year.

The two-day convention passed a motion to seek compensation from the water rights branch for Laroque and about 15 other trappers affected by the flooding.

The convention was also advised by the president of the Ontario Trappers Association to proceed slowly with plans for a trapper-owned fur auction in Edmonton because such a venture would be in trouble if unable to attract international buyers.

Lloyd Cook said that B.C. trappers should continue to send their furs to the North Bay, Ont. auction run by the OTA.

Plans adopted last year for a trapper-owned auction in Edmonton have been shelved because a suitable manager could not be found, the convention was told.

KAMLOOPS (CP) — Civic workers here voted Saturday to end their strike of more than two months and accept the settlement recommended in an industrial inquiry report.

Details of the report, prepared by industrial inquiry commissioner Clive McKee and presented to Labor Minister Bill King and both sides in the dispute, were not released.

Bill Ferguson, business agent for the Canadian Union of Public Employees, said members voted 127-7 in favor of the report.

The city has made no comment on the report.

The 275 workers have been without a contract since Jan. 1. They have been seeking wage parity with Vancouver-area city workers.

Vancouver Firemen Battle Major Blaze

VANCOUVER (CP) — Traffic was blocked for several hours on South Granville Street Saturday as firemen battled a three-alarm fire.

Fire broke out in the basement of a single-storey building in the 3000-block South Granville containing a camera store, a tailor shop, a seafood shop and a knitting supply store.

No injuries were reported.

AS OF JULY 1 YOU MUST HAVE A DRIVER'S CERTIFICATE AND A DRIVER'S LICENCE TO DRIVE.

Driver's certificates are something new for British Columbia motorists . . . a way of spreading the cost of automobile insurance between vehicle owners and drivers.

Effective July 1, you'll need both a driver's certificate and a driver's licence in order to drive a car. Without your driver's certificate, your driver's licence is not valid and you could also find yourself without insurance coverage. If you drive without a certificate you risk a minimum fine of $250 and 10 demerit points.

Application forms for certificates were mailed out last March so you should have received one by now. Just sign and date it where indicated, then take it to any Motor Vehicle Licence Office for processing. REMEMBER, IT'S TOO LATE TO MAIL IT SO BRING IT IN.

If for some reason your application didn't arrive in the mail, take your driver's licence to any Motor Vehicle Licence Office and you'll get your certificate.

How much you pay for your driver's certificate will depend upon the number of demerit points on your driving record.

IF YOUR BIRTHDAY IS IN JULY OR AUGUST you'll soon receive your second application form. This second form is actually to renew your driver's certificate until your next birthday in 1975. Your first driver's certificate was for the start-up period — March 1, 1974 until your 1974 birthday, and it expires on your birthday.

If you have any questions call your Autoplan Information Centre at 665-2800. Outside Vancouver please call collect.

HERE'S HOW TO GET YOUR DRIVER'S CERTIFICATE.

1. Sign and date your application in two places, as in the sample.
2. Take all three portions to any Motor Vehicle Licence Office for processing.
3. If your application form has not arrived in the mail, take your driver's licence to any Motor Vehicle Licence Office and you'll get your certificate.

WHALING PROTEST DEFLATED

LONDON (AP) — An anti-whaling demonstration by a conservationist group was deflated today when its 30-foot plastic whale sank in the River Thames.

Friends of the Earth planned to moor the whale near Vauxhall Bridge to greet delegates arriving for the International Whaling Commission's annual meeting.

But as the whale was being inflated it sprang a leak. Repair efforts failed and the whale's floppy carcass was hauled aboard a police launch and taken away.

Tribute Paid

VINEYARD HAVEN, Mass. (AP) — Veteran stage and film stars mingled with shell fishermen Sunday to pay tribute to the late actress Katharine Cornell during a two-hour memorial gathering.

Her Shoes Kept Falling Off . . . So Nurse Was Slain

ADDIS ABABA — Ethiopian guerrillas killed a Dutch nurse they kidnapped because one of her shoes kept falling off and she couldn't keep up as they ran through the bush, said her companion.

Deborah Dortzbach, a pregnant, 24-year-old missionary nurse from Freehold, N.J., kidnapped May 27 with the Dutch nurse Anna Stickwerda, said the guerrillas of the Eritrean Liberation Front asked her to relay their apologies for the killing.

Mrs. Dortzbach, releaased unharmed Saturday, told her story to her associates in the Society of International Missions in Asmara, the capital of the northern province of Eritrea.

Mrs. Dortzbach's friends said she told this story:

After they were taken from the hospital at gunpoint, Miss Stickwerda and Mrs. Dortzbach were forced to run through the bush toward a hideout. But the Dutch nurse was unable to keep up.

One shoe fell of repeatedly, and the guerrillas told the woman she would have to hurry. She fell to the ground, gasping: "I can't go on. I can't go on."

The guerrillas told Mrs. Dortzbach the shooting of the Dutch nurse was a "tactical mistake."

A spokesman for the Society of International Missions said the guerrillas released Mrs. Dortzbach unconditionally. He said she brought an apology from the E.L.F. for the shooting and assurances that the mission hospital will not be harassed again.

By chance, a relative arrived three hours later and rescued her.

The workmen had turned her home into a tomb by mistake. They were ordered to seal up houses being readied for demolition — and had been given the wrong address.

A court spokesman said mother and daughter were doing well.

AMMAN — All books and publications written by U.S. author James A. Michener have been banned in Jordan. Government sources said the ban was ordered Sunday by the censorship department because of what they called the writer's "pro-Zionist feelings."

LOUISVILLE — Rev. Sam Willis has patented a device that he says can cool a 10-ounce can of soft drink 50 degrees in two minutes or less.

Willis, a Methodist minister, says he's ignorant of chemistry and engineering. The only way he can explain his invention is that "God gave it to me."

GENEVA, N.Y. — Lightning struck here Friday and cooked a roast beef in record time.

"I just left a roast on the stove and had gone into the family room for a minute when I heard thunder and a searing noise in the kitchen," Mrs. Dominick Massa said. "The whole kitchen lit up."

Firemen called to the mobile home found the roast well done and a hole in the broiler pan and electric stove where the lightning had struck.

Mrs. Massa said the lightning hit only one burner of the stove, and caused no other damage.

PARKERSBURG, W. Va. — Disc jockey Ken Kramer added a new dimension to streaking Friday night by dashing in the nude while handling a live, remote broadcast.

Pope to Martians

NANCY, France (AFP) — Michel Collin, the self-anointed anti-pope who counted Martians among his flock in the Order of Mary the Co-Redeemer, died Sunday after a long illness. He was 69.

He adopted the title Pope Clement XV, and claimed to be the possessor of "the third secret which our Lady of the Rosary confided to three shepherds at Fatima in 1917."

Excommunicated by the Roman Catholic Church in 1951, he later dismissed reigning Pope Paul VI as "nothing but a usurper."

Clement XV four years ago "excommunicated" the chief tax collector of Nancy, who had maintained that Michel Collin owed 270,000 francs (then about $50,000) in back taxes.

In the course of his travels, he founded several religious communities and proclaimed his church to be "interplanetary."

He said "many Martians have already landed on earth and live secretly among us." He planned to build chapels on the planets Mars and Venus.

STRIKER'S CLAIMS REALLY UP POLE

CALGARY (CP) — A 27-year-old Firestone employee continued to sit on top of the company's 200-foot-high water tower through the weekend to draw attention to a contract dispute between the company and its 240 employees.

Dave Schiedel, talking to reporters Sunday via a walkie-talkie from his perch atop the water tower, said he was in fine spirits.

Schiedel climbed the tower Friday morning with food, water, a sleeping bag and other essentials, then tied himself to a light standard so he wouldn't be blown away.

He has acquired a sunburn, but his morale hasn't wavered, Schiedel said.

He promised to come down if the company comes up "with a sign of good faith," such as cost-of-living increases for the workers.

The negotiating committee for the United Rubber Workers union says the men want cost-of-living increases, a re-evaluation of overtime and shift bonuses and an end to what they call a total dependence by management on head office officials in the United States.

Plant manager Ed Whitley has said the company will not talk to the workers, who he says are striking illegally. Their contract has one year to run, he claims.

Freedom Has It's Problems

By HUGH ORGEL

TEL AVIV (Reuter) — Immigrants to Israel from the Soviet Union have found that freedom has its complications.

For people with a Western background, freedom of choice and competition is natural within the restrictions of educational, economic and social limitations. For those coming from a closed, directed society, the choice of options can be frightening.

Some tales being told in Israel may be apocryphal but they illustrate some of the problems. One tells of the tailor who arrived wth his family, having received permission to emigrate from the Soviet Union after years of applications.

Like other newcomers, he was given rooms upon his arrival, housed and fed with funds donated to the Jewish Agency through worldwide appeals. He and his family were given an intensive Hebrew language course at an Ulpan (language training workshop) and some months later were provided with housing.

Long-term, low-interest loans enabled him to buy furniture and special facilitiesto outfit a workshop with sewing machines and other implements.

LACKED CUSTOMERS

Within a month he was back at the Jewish Agency and ministry of immigrant absorption officers, banging on the table.

"What's wrong? He was asked. "Machine broken down? Workshop unsatisfactory?"

"No, that's all right, but why haven't you sent me any customers?," he demanded.

Another story is of a woman immigrant taken on a tour of Tel Aviv within a day or so of her arrival, during which she was taken through a supermarket.

Most immigrants, and especially those without means, spend the first few months in Israel wjhin the sheltered surroundings of immigrant absorption centres, learning elementary Hebrew and making their first adjustments to life here.

ADJUSTMENT DIFFICULT

Some psychologists said the first signs of worry appear a month or so before they leave for their new homes and jobs.

"How will we set up house?" they ask. "How will we adjust to our new neighbors and they to us? How will I get along in my new job? How will I decide when faced with a free choice?"

All these become serious problems, the psychologists said.

The do-it-yourself attitude of citizens with even a rudimentary knowledge of house repairs seems completely absent from the former residents of Moscow, Kiev or Minsk.

What might be thought to be one of the most difficult readjustments—to freedom of speech—appears to be one of the easiest. After the first few weeks of guarded conversation, free speech comes in a flood.

Russians have always loved to philosophize at length, to analyse their thoughts and feelings. The immigrant from Russia is no exception and not long after his arrival the conversation, around tables laden with vodka and salt herring, widens from self-analysis to the heady world of cities and politics in general.

More complicated is the adjustment to work and the cultural amenities offered in a competitive society. Russian immigrants say among the things they miss most are the almost free concerts and theatrical performances offered them within the Soviet Union.

Fled Czechoslovakia, Now Sells to Russia

BATAWA, Ont. (CP) — Tony Cervinka fled Czechoslovakia 23 years ago when his paint-and-varnish plant was seized by the Communist government. Now, he has sold a manufacturing process to Russia.

Mr. Cervinka is chief technical adviser to the Bata Shoe Co. on a new process called monoplax.

The resulting shoes and boots — the Weather Guard line — are waterproof and durable. They look like leathery vinyl and can be produced in a multitude of styles and colors.

Mr. Cervinka developed monoplax in three years between 1958 and 1961.

Two years ago, Bata and Mr. Cervinka began negotiations that sold the rights to the Soviet Union at an undisclosed price. Bata owns the equipment and the rights but the patents are held by Mr. Cervinka.

Mr. Cervinka said his process depends on exacting chemistry — he is a chemical engineer — mould quality and precise machine performance and control.

Three-Tiered Tax Plan Proposed

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Social Credit MLA for Cariboo said Sunday the provincial government will be asked this fall to create a three-tiered property taxation structure to relieve British Columbia homeowners.

Alex Fraser, a member of a legislative committee reviewing tax laws, said he believes the committee will recommend that municipalities and regional disticts be given the option to set different mill rates for residential, commercial and industrial property.

He said in a telephone interview from Quesnel that a report from the committee, which will hold public meetings beginning in late August, will be ready by October.

"This report is going to affect every property owner in the province," he said.

Election 'Bourgeois Fraud'

Canada's Marxist - Leninist Party considers the federal election a "bourgeois fraud", but it's running 104 candidates in the July 8 election anyway.

Party leader Hardial Bains, who is contesting External Affairs Minister Sharp's seat in Toronto, was in town Saturday to boost the candidacy of the party's Victoria candidate, Dave Danielson.

"The system cannot be changed through parliamentary methods," Bains said in an interview.

However, the election can be used as a forum to promote the revolutionary struggle and a Marxist-Leninist seat in Parliament would help the workers, he said.

Is Canada ripe for a revolution?

"We don't believe that you can have a revolutionary overthrow at this time," Bains said. However, he predicted it would happen in his lifetime.

As evidence of the coming revolution, he pointed to recent strikes across the country, such as the national postal walkout and airport firemen's strike.

When postal employees take over the post office, newspaper workers the newspapers, and factory workers the factories, that's revolution, said Danielson.

Heather Brightens Walk Behind the Legislature

* * *

Pernettya is a prickly evergreen shrub, with tiny white bell flowers, prickly small dark green leaves. When pollinated, long lasting berries are produced, which may be pink, white or red.

For a small garden, this shrub may be rather rampant as it grows older. It not only reaches a height of three or four feet in 12 years but suckers freely from the roots. This can of course be controlled by cutting off unwanted suckers.

Pieris japonica is the other evergreen shrub, also with the typical ericaceous (Heather Family) bells. These are creamy white in spring, hanging in clusters. The leaves are a smooth light green in contrast to the small prickly dark green leaves of pernettya.

Adjacent beds of dwarf spreading yews (taxus), dwarf mugho pines, with the new "candle" growths kept pinched out to maintain their dwarf stature, are suitable companions, but I'm not so sure about the several yucca plants in the same area.

Take a look at them some time when you park on Superior Street nearby and take a walk between the beds. The yuccas are interesting enough with their flower stems elongating in summer and hardy enough for the winter winds. Perhaps those must be the standards for selection.

* * *

The gold foliaged heathers seem to resent close cropping practiced successfully on the other varieties. Patches of dead wood show on the gold ones as though they had failed to make new shoots after their cropping last year. Perhaps they were cropped too low into old wood. We just take off the flowered portion each year so that our gold heathers are about 15 inches in height, not flat mounds.

Gold foliaged plants are known to be less sturdy because of lack of green leaf area for making reserve food storage.

The other heathers in this centennial planting are certainly worth a visit, especially if you are not acquainted with their ornamental value, and their culture.

Had a poor player been sitting in the south seat in today's deal, he would have been excused for his play of the slam contract. But he was a good player — and thus had no excuse.

Opening lead: King of ♣.

Dummy's ace of clubs won the opening lead, after which the ace and king of trumps were cashed. A heart was then led, with dummy's jack being finessed. Upon taking the trick with his queen, East returned the diamond jack. When South finessed his queen, West's king took the setting trick.

Had declarer's finesse of the heart jack been successful, he would have fulfilled his contract, for he then would have been able to discard one of dummy's diamonds on his king of hearts. All he would have then lost would have been a diamond trick. But the fact is that he misplayed the hand.

Upon winning the opening club lead with dummy's ace, declarer should have ruffed a club at once. The ace and queen of trumps would then be cashed, and this would be followed by the ruffing of another club. Next would come a heart to dummy's ace, after which the jack of hearts would be led to South's king. South's remaining heart would then be ruffed in dummy. Hearts would now be eliminated from both the North and South hands.

Next would come the jack of clubs, and on it South would discard his losing five of diamonds. West would win the trick with the queen of clubs (which he was known to possess, based on his opening lead of the club king).

West would now be the victim of an end play. If he played back a heart (or, in theory, a club, if he had one) declarer would ruff the trick with dummy's last trump as, simultaneously, he discarded the diamond queen from his own hand.

And if, instead, West returned a diamond (as he actually did), South's queen would capture the trick via a "free finesse." As South actually played the hand — taking two finesses — he was unlucky in that one of the finesses figured to be successful. But, as has been demonstrated, his defeat was strictly his own fault.

FUN WITH FIGURES

By J. A. HUNTER

"I'll take the print anyway," said Greg. "And it will be one of these two frames. What's the difference?"

Len checked in his list. "With the gilt frame the total is $87.75," he replied. "But the black frame is only two thirds the price of the gilt, so with that it would come to an even $75.00. All without taxes, that is."

(Answer tomorrow.)

More Hospital Staffs Voting on Walkouts

KELOWNA (CP) — A hospital employees' union official said Sunday hospital employees in Penticton, Kamloops and Trail were expected to vote today on whether to walk off the job in support of workers here.

Ray McCready of the British Columbia Hospital Employees Union, said he is confident, however, that talks with Kelowna General Hospital will lead to a better deal for the workers, who started a study session Thursday in the hospital's cafeteria.

Although the hospital was granted an injunction Saturday ordering its 288 non-medical workers back to work, none had returned Sunday, when McCready, union representative for the Okanagan-Kootenay region, and union business agent Jack Gerow met five times with hospital administrator Colin Elliott.

McCready said in an interview the union stopped work at Kelowna because Elliott is also president of the B.C. Hospitals Association.

"The problems we face are common to every hospital in the province," said McCready. "This matter must be — and is being — resolved at Kelowna."

Now H-Test Hinted For India

Times News Services

India plans to follow last month's atomic test with a "more spectacular feat in the future" — probably a hydrogen bomb test, reports from New Delhi indicated Sunday.

No further British nuclear tests were scheduled in the near future, but the one which took place in Nevada was "necessary to maintain the effectiveness of our nuclear deterrent."

Arrangements for the test were made by the former Conservative government, which left office four months ago, he said.

It was Britain's first N-test in nine years.

Left-wing Laborites believe British tests compromise the government, which has made known its displeasure at India's entry into the nuclear club and France's latest test in the atmosphere over the Pacific.

Henry's Hopeful Of Accord

Times News Services

WASHINGTON — U.S. Secretary of State Henry Kissinger said today the United States and Russia may reach an "agreement in principle" on an underground test ban during President Nixon's summit visit to Moscow this week.

Kissinger, however, branded as "totally false in every detail" assertions that he had already negotiated a secret agreement giving the Soviet Union more nuclear missiles than publicly announced in the first round of Strategic Arms Limitation Talks.

Kissinger was questioned closely about past nuclear arms negotiation, but he opened his news conference with a lengthy discussion of what he hopes will be accomplished this week when he and President Nixon arrive in Moscow for another summit meeting with Soviet leaders.

The sessions will involve three parts, Kissinger said. The first will be a general review of the world situation.

The second part and the most difficult, he said, will be "the serious problem ... of the control of the nuclear arms race."

Public Service Vote Favors New Contract

By ROGER STONEBANKS
Times Staff

A new master contract covering general conditions for the bulk of British Columbia's public service employees has won overwhelming acceptance, the B.C. Government Employees Union announced today.

A union spokesman said the contract was accepted by 92 per cent of the 24,000 persons who voted. Turnout, he added, was about 90 per cent.

Salaries are not a part of the master contract. They will be negotiated in a second contract covering 13 occupational groups within the BCGEU.

The union said notice to bargain on the second contract was to be served on the Public Service Commission today and talks could begin as early as next week.

Under the general contract, employees working 40 or more hours a week will come down to 37½ hours and clerks working 36 hours and 40 minutes will go on a 35-hour week.

Shift differentials of 25 cents an hour for afternoons and 30 cents for graveyard are established and overtime will be at the rate of time and one-half for the first four hours and double time after that. Double time will be paid for work on statutory holidays and triple time will be paid for Christmas and New Year's Day.

A dental plan will be established with the employer paying 75 per cent of the cost.

The new contract will run to Sept. 30, 1975.

IWA Package Refusal Urged

The executive board of the Victoria local of the International Woodworkers of America recommended to 1,800 local members today that they reject the proposed new contract with the coast timber industry.

The local IWA members met this morning at the Esquimalt Municipal Sports Centre and cast their ballots. But results will not be disclosed until Saturday, said an IWA spokesman, when it is expected that most coast votes will be completed.

The executive board gave three reasons for recommending rejection: The logging and plywood sections were "not properly looked after" and the base rate was insufficient. However, the executive board recommended that members return to work while coast locals vote.

Meanwhile, there was no return to work among close to half the coast woodworkers, including nearly all the 14,000 on Vancouver Island. They stopped work when the last contract expired 10 days ago without a settlement.

Jack Munro, regional president of the IWA, expressed confidence that the 32,000 coast members will accept the new contract although he was sorry to hear the Victoria and the 5,650-member New Westminster IWA locals recommending rejection.

"I don't think their executive board understands the entire package," he said.

PENSIONERS' PLOTS RAVAGED

He went to stroll around his garden early Saturday morning and found vegetables and flowers uprooted and lying battered all over the yard. Three of his neighbors on Lampson were also victimized and one resident of nearby Joffre Street reported a similar raid had taken place overnight.

"It burns me up," Smart told the Times today. "Five pensioners were hit in a row and the raiders just went through and pulled all the vegetables out and left them lying around. It's pretty sick.

"Spinach, lettuce and carrots were just about ready."

One incensed neighbor said the vandalism was "as low as you can get. These people are in retirement, enjoy their gardens and enjoy the fresh food."

She said a similar incident had taken place this time last year. "We figured then it was just malicious mischief, but when it happened again this year we decided it should be reported.

"One man," the woman explained, "had never grown such carrots as this year and he was pretty disgusted."

The task force will turn over its findings to Ms. Young for possible action.

Members of the task force will be Vincent Forbes, executive vice-president of the Vancouver Better Business Bureau, Shelley Rivkin, who works with the Consumer Action League in Vancouver, and a third member, whose name was not announced.

'Rough Justice' Ahead—Stanfield

Times News Services

The business community will have to put up with "fairly rough justice for a year and a half or so" under a prices and incomes control program, Progressive Conservative leader Robert Stanfield said in a weekend TV interview.

During the subsequent 18-to-24-month period of flexible controls, business would have to justify price increases.

"This may strike some businessmen as fairly rough justice ...," he commented.

Claims that price-income freezes had not worked in the United States were "just not so," he added.

Controls presented problems, he said, but "they have not proven to be failures."

Stanfield also said, on the weekend he has no reason to believe a Gallup poll figure which indicates that the percentage of undecided voters has dropped to 14 per cent from 33 in mid-May.

In Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., NDP leader David Lewis was asked at a news conference about the poll.

"I wish we had shown higher, not so much for the results on July 8, as for the spirit of the thing," Lewis said.

Half-Price Holidays

Weary MLAs, legislative staff and press gallery members have been invited to relax in Maui after the longest sesssion in B.C. history.

Gordon Gibson Jr. (L-North Vancouver Capilano) extended the invitation for any time before Christmas this year, and said his father was "not motivated by any desire for gain other than your company."

New Subpoena Against Nixon

Times News Services

WASHINGTON — The House Judiciary Committee issued another subpoena against President Nixon today despite his declaration that he would not comply.

The subpoena asked for 12 tapes and copies of Nixon's daily news summaries for a period in the winter and spring of 1972 when Richard G. Kleindienst was testifying before senate judiciary committee hearings of his nomination as attorney-general.

The committee has issued four previous subpoenas since it began its inquiry into the possible impeachment of Nixon.

The United States Supreme Court, also postponed today a decision on Nixon's request for the evidence which led a federal grand jury to name him as an unindicated co-conspirator in the Watergate political espionage scandal.

Meanwhile, Sen. Sam Ervin said Sunday the Senate Watergate committee is expected to have its report ready by Thursday but said it probably would not be made public until after Congress' July 4 recess.

The reason for delay in releasing the report was the trial of four defendants in the Ellsberg break-in beginning Wednesday, he said.

Kemano Hydro Study On

Work began today on a $238,000 environmental impact study of the effects of the controversial proposed Kemano Two hydro-electric project.

The project, recommended in a 1972 B.C. energy board report, would drastically reduce the flows in the Nechako, Morice and Nanika river systems.

It would increase power generated at Kemano, 100 miles south of Kitimat, by diverting 90 per cent of the Morice, Dean and Nanika rivers into the Nechako reservoir shutting off most of the original Nechako river flows.

Resources Minister Bob Williams said the project would almost certainly not be developed but the studies were needed to provide the government with "some ammunition to use against Alcan."

In 1950 B.C. signed a water rights agreement with Alcan (Aluminium Co. of Canada) which would allow the project to go ahead.

Fisheries biologist Jim Walker said the study is supported by B.C. Hydro and three agencies are involved in the work — Environment Canada, the fish and wild life branch, and the International Pacific Salmon Commission.

He said the Dean River is not included in the impact study.

He described the study as a basic inventory of fish and wild life resources and said it would include a three-man socio-economic team and a study of recreation potential.

The studies are expected to take one to two years to complete.

War Canoes Relive Old Glories

They formed the highlight of the annual two-day water festival sponsored by the Tsartlip band of West Saanich.

Some of the 10 eleven-man canoes, as long as 54 feet, reached speeds as high as 10 knots as their crews vied for top honors.

As well as eight crews from Vancouver Island, there were two from the mainland — one from Chehalis near Mission City and the other from St. Thereas in North Vancouver.

A Cowichan canoe manned by Wayne Page and Terry George of Cowichan won the men's doubles. Mr. and Mrs. Arvid Charlie, also of Cowichan, won the mixed doubles. Leonard Morris of the host band was men's singles champion.

Fesitval chairman Samuel Sam, valued some of the canoes as high as $3,000, adding the value of the craft in preserving his people's culture, was beyond any price tag.

Competitors racing on the weekend will be following a regular racing circuit in the six months that lie ahead.

Phillips has just completed a four-year contract with the federal Indian affairs department, visiting schools to demonstrate and teach Indian dance and legends.

A champion dancer, Phillips appears in the Walt Disney production "The Bears and I," shortly to be released.

Indian costumes, Phillips explained, have become more Pan-Indian since 1971.

Wilson Admits

Aziz Ahmed, Pakistan's minister of defence and foreign affairs, said today India has enough plutonium for 17 nuclear bombs and that this has been confirmed by Canada.

"According to our calculations, which were confirmed by the Canadian government when I talked to them, India has enough plutonium for 17 bombs—all surreptitiously collected from the reactor set up with Western help," Ahmed said.

"The bomb has been exploded right outside our door. We know who are the target countries."

"Nevertheless, in deference to the wishes of some of my colleagues we have very considerably toned down our draft resolution which merely notes the fact that India has exploded a device. This is a fact. In fact India is very proud of it."

will be back at the bargaining table in eight months."

The offer negotiated with Forest Industrial Relations, bargaining arm for 120 companies, includes a general raise of 12 per cent, with a minimum increase of 65 cents an hour, a number of job rate revisions, a cost-of-living clause and fringe benefits including a dental plan.

Present wages range from $4.45 an hour for laborers to $7 an hour for head sawyers.

The president of the New Westminster IWA, Gerry Stoney, said 80 per cent of his members would get only 65 cents an hour more because the wage revisions applied to only a few members in his local.

Other local executive boards were also making recommendations to their members but they declined to disclose them ahead of meetings.

Munro again appealed to IWA members who have walked out to return to work.

"There was no need to have missed any work. We attempted to keep them on the job but some irresponsible people set up picket lines. It would be silly to continue to lose work," he said.

Alberta Counting New Forest Fires

EDMONTON (CP) — Alberta Forest Service (AFS) officials were still counting new forest fires early today after a lightning storm Sunday night which started at least 20 new forest fires in northern Alberta's tinder-dry forests.

More trouble is expected tonight as widespread thunder and lightning storms are being forecast by AFS weather officers in in Edmonton.

The storm brought to at least 37 the number of fires still burning in the province. Only one remains out of control. The major blaze at Judy Creek, 160 miles northwest of here, was brought under control Saturday.

About 1,000 men remain on the fire lines, fighting blazes which have blackened more than 50,000 acres of prime forest. The Judy Creek fire burned more than 30,000 acres and the Rock Island Lake fire near Slave Lake about 10,000 acres.

AFS officials had hoped wet weather during the weekend would bring and end to new forest fires. Instead, hot and dry weather continued, bringing on lightning and thunder storms over wide areas of central and northern Alberta.

Temperatures are predicted to reach 80 degrees in all areas of northern Alberta today. Thunder and lightning storms are predicted for late this afternoon and tonight in most areas.

Firefighting crews which are no longer needed at fires now under control have been moved to central areas in preparation for quick movement to new spot fires, said AFS officials.

Three Canso water bombers were moved Sunday from Slave Lake to the Lac La Biche area to be in a more central location to move into new fire areas.

Tory Hits $1 Bill Art

SASKATOON (CP) — For one Saskatoon candidate at least, the new $1 bill has become an election issue.

Conservative candidate Eugene Rheaume, running in Saskatoon-Humboldt, says in newspaper advertisements that "Trudeau has taken the prairie scene off the $1 bill and replaced it with something he thinks is more Canadian than the West.

CABINET ENLARGED

Fort George MLA Alf Nunweiler has been appointed to the cabinet as a minister without portfolio responsible for northern development.

The appointment, rumored for several weeks, was announced Saturday by Premier Dave Barrett in Prince George.

Elsewhere in B.C. another 4,000 Indians were slated to carry out local demonstrations.

Men, women and children will march the three miles from Songhees to the legislative lawns for the mass demonstration Tuesday, carrying placards and camping in tents they started pitching today.

Their route will be via Admirals, Esquimalt, Johnson Street bridge, Wharf Government and Belleville.

Native people want action on inadequate housing, better education and an end to welfare-oriented programs.

They seek action on high unemployment, high numbers of Indians in jails, unfair provincial taxation and the lack of "a true economic base for Indian reserves."

"Today's celebration marks the end of 100 years of hostile treatment by whites, the Indians say, and now they are entering a new period of resurgence.

Dancing, Indian games, singing and an open forum for native speakers are on today's program.

To help the celebration, bands from various points have donated cash, 500 pounds of clams, a cow, printing and services.

Charges In Peking

PEKING (Reuter) — New wall posters appeared in Peking today saying that more than 200 persons have died in massacres in recent years in China's southeastern Kiangsi province.

The posters also reported fresh clashes between feuding factions and referred to two "bloodshed incidents" in Kaingsi province June 10 and 18.

Observers said it is possible some statements in the wall posters, put up by workers in the strife-torn province, are exaggerated but they left little doubt that the situation there is potentially explosive.

Poster campaigns are going on in a number of leading Chinese provincial centres, with local leaders under attack either for mishandling the current campaign against former defence minister Lin Piao and Chinese philosopher Confucius or for suppressing criticism.

Today's posters did not say when the 200 reported deaths took place or whether they were spread over a long period. But they said whole families, including children, were wiped out and the dead included a 71-year-old man.

They blamed the killings on former provincial leader Chen Shih-ching, who rose to prominence at the end of the 1060s and dropped from view about two years ago.

Posters signed by workers in the Kiangsi capital of Nanchang put up Sunday reported a clash June 19. They said blood was spilled and several persons jailed when fighting broke out after a right-wing group armed itself with iron bars and sticks and seized several trucks as propaganda vehicles.

Elsewhere, the posters said that followers of the late Lin Piao tried to turn Kiangsi into a Lin Piao base and still are trying to make a comeback.

The writers of one series of posters said they have much more data on the situation on Kiangsi and want an interview with Chairman Mao Tse-tung to tell him.

Several of the wall posters have taken the form of open letters to Mao, although there has been no word that the 80-year-old leader has acknowledged any of them.

Cambodian Capital Hit By Chinese-Made Rockets

PHNOM PENH (UPI) — The Cambodian high command today reported two military victories over Communist rebels far from Phnom Penh but insurgents fired three more 107mm rockets into the Cambodian capital Sunday night, killing five persons and wounding nine others.

One of the Chinese-made projectiles virtually wiped out a family of 10, killing an army captain and three of his children and wounding the other six members of his family.

Another rocket fell about a half mile south of President Lon Nol's residence, killing one civilian and wounding three others. The third shell landed in the Boeng Tumpon Lake.

The Cambodian command said government troops recaptured Trapeang Kraloen, 36 miles southwest of Phnom Penh on Highway 4, and reopened a stretch of the strategic road linking the capital with the country's only deep sea port — Kompong Som.

Other government units were pursuing rebel troops outside a recaptured refinery at Kompong Som, the command said.

Sunday's shelling was the sixth consecutive day of rocket attacks on Phnom Penh. Most were aimed at the southern part of the city, where the presidential palace and the U.S. embassy are.

In South Vietnam, Communist sappers crept into the Hoa My government infantry camp, the former U.S. camp Evans 15 miles northwest of Hue, and blew up more than 25,000 gallons of gasoline and fuel oil, military sources said.

Tht sources said the attack in northern South Vietnam took place before sun-up today. Sappers on Sunday night also blew up a dump containing 4,500 tons of artillery shells and other munitions seven miles southeast of Hue, the sources said.
